WOMEN RUSH TO BIRTH CONTROL HEARING

CHARGE ADAMS GIRL WAS SLAIN

GIRLS TELL ABOUT ALLISON

Witnesses Describe How "Flame" Editor Distributed Pamphlets at Doors of Factories and Shops

Scores of women crowded the Central Police Court corridors today when Van K. Allison was placed on trial before Judge Murray on two complaints of distributing obscene literature and one complaint of having the same in his possession.

The pamphlets referred to birth control and, according to government witnesses, were distributed among girls at a North street candy factory and one copy given to a police officer in the office of Allison.

Allison is the editor of The Flame, with an office at No 14 Park square.

Previous to the opening of the case, Judge Murray instructed the officers to have all women leave the court room, but as soon as the court room was emptied other women entered and all spectators' and witnesses' seats were taken.

Attorney Roewer, counsel for Allison, made motions that the cases be dismissed as the complaints did not set forth objectionable matter on which the government intended to prove their case, but the motions were denied by the court.

MOTIONS DENIED.

Attorney Roewer also asked for a bill of particulars on the complaint that the article by Dr. Robinson published in The Flame was unlawful, as the government did not contend that the entire story was defamatory.

Both motions were denied and Patrolman James A. Long of the Lagrange street station was called as the first witness. He testified:

"On the morning of July 6 about 10:30, I visited the office of Van K. Allison, in room 10, No. 14 Park square. The door was locked and I knocked and Allison opened the door and I told him I wished to subscribe to The Flame and paid him 50 cents and he gave me a receipt.

"I gave him the name of John Mitchell and Allison signed the receipt.

"I told him I wanted information regarding birth control and he gave me a sample copy of the paper and called my attention to an article by Dr. Robinson."

Simms Makes Clean Breast of Thefts from a Newton Man's House; Is Held in $1,200

Charles W. Simms, Jr., of No. 13 Fifield street, Watertown, the former Harvard student who was arrested charged with stealing diamonds and jewelry valued at more than $1,200 from the home of William E. Litchfield of No. 75 Bellevue street, Newton, today made a full confession to the Newton police admitting the thefts. Here is the confession:

"I, Charles W. Simms, Jr., between October 1st and Nov. 30, 1915, took the following articles, which I pawned at Roy's, No. 77 Summer street, Boston, and used the money for my own purposes: One pearl pin, set in platinum; one diamond pin, one watch, two diamonds and one watch which I sold at Bryan's. I make this statement of my own free will."

Simms was arraigned on the charge today before Judge Kennedy in the Newton police court. He was held in $1,200 for a continuance until August 16.

Max Levine, a Boston pawnbroker, testified that Simms had pawned several articles of jewelry at his shop and identified several of the articles. This evidence was corroborated by G. Clifton Watts, a member of a detective agency, who traced Simms by the pawned articles and brought about his arrest.

U-BOAT REPORTED OFF THE BAHAMAS

Colon, July 20.—Declarations by members of the crew of the Norwegian steamer Terrier that they sighted a submarine off Watling Island, one of the Bahamas, created great interest here today. According to the sailors the submarine dived before the Terrier could approach it.

One theory discussed here after the Terrier made its report was that the German submarine Bremen had tried to reach the Virginia Capes, but had been intercepted by British warships and driven far out of its course.

NEW DRIVE NORTH OF PERONNE

French Take German Positions Between Combles and Clery; British Also Report Success

By CHARLES F. BERTELL, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, July 20.—Having successfully withstood a number of powerful German counter attacks, the French resumed the offensive late yesterday and the official communique issued by the War Office today stated that they had been very successful.

North of Peronne (Somme river front) the French captured a trench and 400 German prisoners between Combles and Clery.

First line positions on the front of Barleux and Soyecourt were also taken.

The announcement that fighting has taken place in the region of Soyecourt shows that the French have extended their zone of operations farther south.

Combles is about six and one-half miles north of Peronne, and is scarcely less important than Peronne itself. It is on high ground at the intersection of many important roads which stretch away toward Cambrai, Bapaume, Albert, Bray and Peronne. Clery is a little less than four miles south of Combles. Just north of the Somme canal and at the bend of the Somme river.

The French continue their attacks on the Verdun front, the War Office announced. They captured a strongly fortified German work south of Fleury on the east side of the Meuse, where they took 150 prisoners.

CARRY LINES EAST.

The text of the official communique follows:

"On both sides of the Somme, our infantry this morning attacked the German positions and gained a marked advantage. North of the Somme we captured enemy trenches from Hardecourt Hill to the river and carried our lines appreciably east of Hardecourt along the railway which runs from Combles to Clery. On that section of the battlefield we have taken up to the present 400 prisoners.

"South of the Somme between Barleux and Soyecourt, all the first line trenches of the enemy fell into our hands.

"In Champagne we penetrated a German trench northeast of Auberive, and brought back some prisoners.

"In the Argonne, the Germans at 7 p. m. yesterday attempted a surprise attack upon our small posts in

Lasso Shark Off Nahant; Tow It Alive to Boston

Photograph of nose of six-foot shark captured today by fishermen off Nahant and carried alive to Eastern Packet Pier, Atlantic avenue.

A six and one-half foot shark, savage and hungry enough to suggest the title of "man-eater," was lassoed alive off Nahant and towed alive and fighting all the way to the Eastern Packet Pier on Atlantic avenue by three fishermen in a power dory early today.

On account of the shark scare now prevailing along the popular bathing beaches this spectacular capture of a living "sea tiger," was looked upon by the Boston waterfront as a great "catch 'em alive" performance.

The catch was made by Frank Flower, aided by two Italian dory mates. They were fishing for hake off Nahant. The shark was fishing, too, charging among the hake with savage rushes and coming to the surface near the boat with reckless frequency.

The fishermen fashioned a big rope loop and, after several efforts, slipped the loop over the shark's nose and drew it taut back of his gills and fins.

They "played" the captive for an hour, then started the boat for Boston. The shark had temper left when landed on the wharf and lived an hour.

Newport, R. I., July 20.—The shark season opened in Newport this forenoon when Patrolman Charles A. Gregory of the police force discovered a big one off Ragged Point in the southerly part of the city. Gregory says he took a couple of shots at the shark with his pistol, at which the shark disappeared.

DEUTSCHLAND IS READY FOR SEA DASH

Baltimore, Md., July 20.—All is in readiness for the departure of the German merchant submarine Deutschland with her large cargo of nickel and rubber for Germany.

Orders have been issued to the crew to be in readiness to leave at a moment's notice. None will be allowed to leave the ship and dock. Every sign pointed to a getaway sometime today or tonight. All food supplies necessary for the trip across have been placed on the ship.

At midnight the spars of the Deutschland were taken down, the periscope adjusted and the conning tower closed. At the same time full steam was go up on the tug Thomas F. Timmins, about twenty feet to the starboard. All lights were out. This led the newspaper men to believe the submersible was then going to make her seaward dash.

AUTO AND CAR CRASH; MAN BADLY HURT

Frank E. Whittaker of No. 44 Hastings street, West Roxbury, was struck by an inward bound electric car at the corner of Massachusetts avenue and Bartlett avenue, Arlington, today.

His son, Irving S. Whittaker, who was riding on the same seat with his father, escaped injury. The elder Whittaker was taken to Young's Hospital, where his condition was said to be serious.

COURT ALLOWS GIRL OF 15 TO MARRY

The petition of Louis Theresa Nash, fifteen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Nash of Lexington, to marry George L. Turner, twenty-nine, also of Lexington, was granted in the East Cambridge Probate Court today by Judge Lawton. The petition was filed with the consent of the girl's parents.

FRIENDS DECLARE SHE WAS VICTIM OF POISON PLOT

The Adams-Atwood-Harris case, known as the "Triangle tragedy," was clouded with new and even deeper mystery today over the nature and the source of a strange poison that caused the death of Dr. Celia Paine Adams, the Brookline osteopath. Her friends declared today that she was deliberately murdered.

An alleged confession by Dr. Adams to Dr. Eldridge De Loreia Atwood that she had been betrayed by Dr. Wilfred E. Harris led to Dr. Atwood shooting Dr. Harris, whose life now hangs by a thread.

Medical Examiner George B. Magrath reported after the autopsy that the nature of this poison was yet to be determined and that when, where and under what circumstances this poison was received was not apparent from any facts so far in the medical examiner's possession.

A summary of main developments in the mystery today included these points:

1—Statement of a possibility that Dr. Adams was the victim of murder.

2—Report by Medical Examiner Magrath that the death of the young doctor was caused by mysterious poison.

3—Dr. Clifford D. Harvey, the physician who first attended Dr. Adams, states that in his belief the young woman was the victim of a suicide plot.

4—Sending of internal organs of the dead woman to a chemist in order to determine just what kind of poison caused her death.

5—Hunt by police for woman who was in office at the time Dr. Harris was shot.

6—Police secure letters written by Dr. Harris just after he was shot.

Friends of the dead doctor today proclaim that she was murdered. Their theory is that she was given the mysterious poison and that she took it in her office Monday night.

Just when she entered her office the police are trying to learn today. As far as the police can find out no one saw her enter her office and they wonder if she went there Monday afternoon or evening and lay dying there alone all night.

The police are deeply interested in a package of letters which Dr. Harris dictated as he lay wounded on the floor of his office at the Hotel Westminster. These letters are now in the hands of the police and it is the belief

BATTLE WITH GRENADES.

On the left bank of the Meuse the bombardment continued in the region of Avocourt and Chattancourt. A battle with grenades was fought on the northeastern slopes of Hill 304.

On the right bank of the Meuse we advanced during the night west of the Thiaumont work and east of Fleury. A work powerfully fortified by the enemy in the region of Fleury was seized by our troops, who took several officers and 165 men prisoners.

The number of prisoners we made within was brought down yesterday afternoon by one of our pilots east of Verdun. Aerial reports received thereof by wire was brought to earth by Sergeant in the region of Fort Vaux.

British Advance North of Loupeurg

By SYDNEY B. CAVE.

International Press Service War Correspondent.

London, July 20.—Further success has been won by the British troops in their renewed offensive fighting in the Somme.

The British have advanced their line on a front of 2 miles to a depth of 1,000 yards. The fighting has been marked by the capture of the Bazentin-le-Petit wood, Bazentin village and Pozieres.

Petrograd, July 20.—The Russian center of the Caucasus, within invaded Turkey, is advancing west of Baiburt.

The Russians have driven the enemy from their positions in that zone, "Westward," Baiburt, Gumuche successfully counter-attacked. Hurriedly reinforcing their troops, the Turks succeeded in checking the Russians.

Under the direction of Mouni on Monday the Turks attacked in strong numbers towards Rowanduz and we fell back.

Russians Push Ahead in Galicia

By International News Service.

Petrograd, July 20.—With their victorious advance continuing in the southern ranges of the Carpathian mountains into the Hungarian plain, led by hosts of Siberian Cossacks, the Russians have driven the Austrians from Dorna Watra, the center of the operations in the Dorna and Bistritza regions.

Despite counter attacks, Gaidau, which have flooded some of the river valleys, the Russians continue to advance in Galicia. Red cavalrymen and the infantry are pushing forward and the artillery has been brought forward at a pace equal with the advance of the troops.

Reports from the front say the Russian movement which started to develop thirty-six hours ago continues with increasing vigor. Bridges over rivers are torn and guns are captured, Russian front.

The Austrians, fighting on the Lion and in front of Brody by the Russians, have now exerting pressure from three directions, Kolomea, Brody and Tarnopol, in the south.

French troops are continually flowing toward the front, the Austrians acknowledging that the counter-offensive and Germans are having a difficult time finding reserves to throw against the Russians in Russia and Galicia.

Austrians Repulse On Two Fronts

By International News Service.

Vienna, July 20.—Repulse of Russian attacks on the Galician front in the southern Carpathians was announced by the Austrian War office today in the following official statement:

"Russian theatre of war—Southwest front: Army group of General Field Marshal Archduke Joseph Ferdinand. Southwest of Dolinka, our troops, after a successful attack, took the heights of Old Kirlibaba and captured two officers and 200 men.

"Army group of General Field Marshal Archduke Charles Francis Joseph. Artillery preparation strong Italian front on the Carso and in the Gorizia region east of Enotta Pass, being replied to by our artillery with effect. WAR SUMMARY

The Paris official statement today announces that French troops have captured a German trench and 400 prisoners between Combles and Clery, north of the Somme. If the captured position is on a line drawn from Combles and Clery, this means that the French have a foothold now within two miles of the Bazentin-Peronne road. Clery is on the Somme, about four miles northwest of Peronne. Combles is four miles due north of Clery. The Combles-Clery road is 2½ miles southeast of the Bazentin-Peronne highway and lies about two miles west of it.

The communique also states that the French have taken German first-line positions on the front of Barleux and Soyecourt, south of Peronne. The German report yesterday of fighting at Barleux said that French attacks there failed, but today's Paris report indicated that the French thrusts toward Peronne from the southwest have registered a gain.

The British night report on the desperate fighting at the tip of the British salient which runs into Longueval claimed the recapture of "most of the ground" which the Germans gained in counter-attack Tuesday night.

Paris also announces a gain on the Verdun front, the capture of a German work south of Fleury, east of the Meuse.

Reports from the eastern theatre conflict as usual, Petrograd says that a surprise attack in the Riga sector threw the Germans into a panic, but Berlin says that Russian attacks south of Riga broke down with losses and that the situation along that sector is generally unchanged. The same applies to the East Galician district. Berlin says "no special incidents." Petrograd claims repulse by shelling of a German thrust.

Even more uncertain is the situation in the Carpathians. Unofficial dispatches from Petrograd speak of Russians being in Austrian territory into Hungary, but the official Russian statement merely says that the Cossacks are advancing "toward the mountain defiles."

Vienna, on the other hand, says that Russian detachments which had crossed to the Carpathian side of the Putil River were driven back.

BLACKLIST PROTEST PLANNED

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, July 20.—A flood of protests from all parts of the United States against the British blacklist was in session in upon the White House and the State Department today.

The action of Great Britain in making public a blacklist list of Americans firms who have been boycotted because they trade with the Central Powers, has aroused public sentiment to a high pitch. Telegrams and letters were pouring here from various commercial organizations and individuals all day.

The State Department is planning action. It is now well understood that the blacklist is "good" for official notice to the United States's actions. It is that is not forthcoming a direct inquiry will be made by the State Department, while Acting Secretary of State Polk will call upon the International Law expert on the subject. It is expected that after the facts are compiled he will take up the matter with President Wilson before framing the planned protest.

BROADENING OF TRADE WAR.

Officials very frankly say that the blacklist is a direct attack on the U. S. their opinion, the opening gun in the broadening of the war of retaliatory trade war against all neutrals who trade with the Central Powers. It is said that the restrictions placed upon exports to neutrals will be next.

They point to the fact that the present blacklist has been prepared by the British Board of Trade and that it has been operating more than a year, although it has been kept secret, thus indicating that the measure is one designed to hit the export trade of manufacturers in regions their trade has been cut off.

Officials here say that the British military preparation strong Italian front on the Carso and in the Gorizia region east of Enotta Pass, being replied to by our artillery with effect. Between the Brenta and Adige valleys a strong attack against Monte Zebio and Tartarro the advance positions of the main position of the Austrians had been forced back by the Italians, but the latter were driven out of the main position, however, was regained, it was stated.

Blacklist Called a Violation of U. S. Rights

By ELLERY C. STOWELL,
Of Columbia University, one of America's foremost authorities on international law.

Bost. Herald, Monday, Mar. 27.

Action of the British government in placing American firms on the blacklist will be considered by a dispatch elsewhere as but an extension of the policy of our own government in the past.

It is doubtful whether the British and American governments will enter into a concern with the enemy, according to which peaceful commerce is carried on in war-zone but allowed to have any dealings with the enemy. Such a concern is the fundamental idea of war that is the basis of the British blacklist proclamation.

The carrying out of this non-intercourse proclamation is the duty of the navy the government which applies the blockade.

The purpose of this policy it may be said, is to deny to the enemy supplies that cutting over supplies into war is almost like the supplying of the sinews of all its financial and commercial strength. Such supplies are, therefore, contraband of war and subject to capture.

GUILTY TO PROTEST RESERVED.

Nevertheless there is much to be said in favor of the British government permitting merchants to continue their trade with the enemy, provided only that the goods are not contraband. The only satisfaction in such acts as the British blacklist proclamation is the feeling of arms and ammunition.

As reported in the newspapers, the Anglo-American doctrine of freedom of the seas, which applies to war, but decreed that system and adopted the German rule.

Germany has long been notorious in commander Pugo relative to the "treading with the enemy contempt of the law of nations." Germany has practiced it "treading with [illegible] of open hostilities with American [illegible] of the right to protest against the application of that law so far as it affects the rights of American citizens.

The moral, governmental radical, a note of February 10 defending the rights of neutrals and asserting the American government that they "will not consent to any abridgment of those rights, even in case [illegible] injury to neutral commerce."

Such is the British position exemplifies a glaring avoidance of these basic and intention to act with the protest possible consideration for [illegible] interests," but we have learned to mistrust those gilts of the [illegible]

The act of the British government puts the crown on a long succession of acts of the same character. Now it is unanimous on one question—that our neutral rights are violated, and our national self-respect to submit.

As a broad meaning it is our obligation to protest against the violation of neutral rights, for our necessary rights as a nation. Regardless, our [illegible] the proper course to pursue [illegible] respect for continued violations of neutral rights.

GIRL OSTEOPATH MAY HAVE BEEN VICTIM OF MURDER PLOT, POLICE BELIEVE

SEE SLAYER'S HAND IN LOVE CASE TRAGEDY

that they will receive any startling developments in the case.

A parallel to the mystery is being made today by the police efforts for a woman who was in downtown office in the Westminster Hotel when he was killed. A description of her has been given to the police but so far they have been unable to find her.

The report of Medical Examiner Magrath led friends to make the statement that Dr. Adams was dead when they saw him.

To mental this theory, Dr. Harvey, of Brookline, the physician who called in after Miss Adams' shooting, expressions, thinks that if the woman who was the relative that she was Dr. Harvey declares that she did not shoot herself, the case is complicated by the fact.

"If somebody believes that somebody else shot Miss Adams," said Dr. Harvey, "then that person is the murderer of Dr. Adams, as Woburn attorney, who has been retained by Mrs. Adams, and Judge de Loreta Adams.

Dr. Adams was found dead in his office in the Westminster Hotel, Boylston street, by Miss Adams, with Death Will Adams, father of the dead osteopath, and Dr. Charles Abbott, Jr., of Brookline.

Dr. Adams died at this time in the Westminster Hotel, by Will Adams, Dr. Harvey, Dr. Abbott and Dr. Magrath.

"After I talk with Dr. Atwood I shall make a statement of what I know of him. We have been in communication with him since the day he was shot."

THEIRS ATTORNEY.

Attorney Kenney is twenty-four and graduated from law school two years ago. He is a member of Governor Walsh's staff and they have been close friends for a number of years.

Dr. Adams at the other Atwood attorney, is a Woburn lawyer. Mr. Adams, his wife is seriously ill, and Mr. Adams is at her bedside in Woburn.

"I will do everything in my power to defend Dr. Atwood," said Attorney Kenney. "He is a friend of mine and of my father. I think the whole affair was a premeditated one. I do not believe that Dr. Atwood was insane."

Frank Journal of Dr. Celia P. Adams was held at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis P. Adams, 30 Bay State road, Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 today. The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. Frederick Lynch, pastor of the Park Street Church, Belmont. Dr. Bishop is a personal friend of the family.

BY GRAY CARNEY.

The body was given absolution, which was brought to the house.

Miss Adams was buried in the family lot in Mount Auburn cemetery, Cambridge.

Dr. Adams died this afternoon, and I gave they want to know about Dr. Atwood.

RAISE FUNDS FOR ATTORNEYS.

Dr. Atwood's brother Alfred Atwood had raised $1,000 for the defense of Dr. Atwood, when he assigned of Dr. Atwood's attorneys, Attorney Kenney.

The police further pointed out that

GREAT BATTLE PROMISED TO EXONERATE DR. ATWOOD

Dr. Atwood, was to accused of trying to shoot Dr. Adams, because he married a great battle to secure the release of Dr. Atwood, and the interests is stand by his son in his fight for freedom, according to the statement to his relatives when they visited him.

Mr. Atwood asserts that the entire Atwood had told them he left Miss Adams' office at the Park Square Building at eight o'clock on Monday night. Dr. Atwood left the office at 11:45; they when he was asked if any one had been in the office.

Yes, she was all right when I left," he said. "She was sitting at her desk."

Dr. Atwood denied any previous knowledge of the young woman's death. He said that he had not seen her since Monday night, and that he could give no information concerning the mysterious in the case.

The police believe that the final examination of the mysterious corpse will be made by Professor Whitney, the famous Harvard University chemist.

The police began a drastic investigation of the life of Dr. Adams, in the hope of throwing some light on the strange and puzzling case. In addition to the police investigation, a private detective agency has been employed by Attorney Kenney to further handle the case of the young woman attorney. Kenney is a friend of Dr. Atwood, who is charged with the murder of Dr. Adams.

The police have not yet found the City Hospital. The physicians, however, are still under examination by the police.

The mystery surrounding the shooting of Dr. Adams in her office in the Westminster Hotel Monday night, was deepened by the statement of Dr. Atwood, who was arrested on a charge of murder in connection with the shooting of Dr. Adams, that he had not seen Dr. Adams since Monday night.

HIBERNIANS ATTEND MASS FOR IRISHMEN EXECUTED IN REVOLT

A solemn high mass of requiem for the repose of the souls of the deceased presidents of the Ancient Order of Hibernians and of the men executed by England, for their part in the recent Irish uprising was celebrated at St. James' Church on Harrison avenue at 9 o'clock today, as a fitting beginning to today's proceedings of the national A. O. H. convention.

This mass for deceased presidents of the order is always one of the religious features of the biennial convention. But today the mass was also said for the Irishmen whose executions have aroused such burning protest.

The mass was celebrated by the Rev. Philip J. O'Donnell and was attended by the convention delegates.

At the service the Rev. P. J. Supple of the Church of St. John the Evangelist in Roxbury spoke briefly on the "Irish Martyrs." He said in part:

"These men gave their lives for their love of country, the cause they loved next to God Himself.

LESSON TO ALL OF US.

"They were scholars and inoffensive men. They felt this was the only way in which the freedom of their country could be accomplished. What a principle in these days of selfishness that these men have left us. They have taught a lesson such as had not been taught for generations. Their names will go down to posterity with the great martyrs. May it be a lesson to all of us."

California delegates to the A. O. H. Convention are boosting hard for the honor of having the next national convention in their State. Balloting for the choice of cities will take place tomorrow afternoon or evening.

A committee from among the California contingent has been formed to boost for San Francisco as the next place of meeting. Literature is being distributed by this committee telling of the wonders of the Pacific Coast city. It is their assertion that they have in their city a convention hall that will accommodate 50,000 persons. There are 2,000 hotels in the city, and the wonders and beauty of the constant mild, summerlike climate of California is being extolled by them to all delegates.

The last convention was held at Norfolk, Va. The next one, two years from now, is being bid for by the delegates from Wilmington, Del. The California delegates claim that if it goes to Wilmington, it will make six years in succession that the convention has been here in the East. They insist that the Easterners and those from the Middle West should have an opportunity of seeing what the Pacific Coast is like.

COMMITTEE IN CHARGE.

The committee in charge includes John J. Cox, California State president; Mrs. John J. Cox, county president of the Ladies' Auxiliary; Thomas R. O'Day, California State treasurer; Mrs. Thomas R. O'Day, P. H. Mahoney, San Francisco county president; Mrs. Howard Malloy, State president Ladies' Auxiliary, and Mrs. Mary O'Connor, county president of the Ladies' Auxiliary.

A feeling of bitter resentment against the British government because of the execution of the Irish prisoners and the sentencing of Sir Roger Casement to death was the dominant note at the convention today.

At the meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary at Convention Hall the same feeling was in the air. However the delegates may differ on minor matters incident to general business, there is apparently an absolute unanimity of opinion regarding the part England has played in the so-called Irish rebellion.

Interest in the fate of Sir Roger Casement, over whose head the death sentence rests, takes precedence over everything else with the delegates at both conventions today.

BANQUET TONIGHT.

In addition to the special interest displayed in this matter, many important questions came up at the opening sessions.

One of the most important events on the week's schedule is the Joint banquet that is to be held this evening at the Copley-Plaza.

Among the men of prominence who are expected to speak on this occasion are Gov. McCall, Mayor Curley, Hon. Claude G. Bowers, Congressman James A. Gallivan, Congressman Peter F. Tague, Hon. Alexander A. Rorke, the Rev. Philip J. O'Donnell, Hon. Francis J. Horgan, Matthew Cummings and others.

It is also expected that Cardinal O'Connell will address the convention or send a representative.

ATTEND LECTURE.

A large number of the delegates and their friends attended the lecture in Convention Hall last night. There, Benedict Fitzgerald gave an interesting talk on "Irish Music" and Mrs. Katherine A. O'Keefe O'Mahoney, spoke on John Boyle O'Reilly. Mrs. O'Mahoney told of the life of this great Irish poet, of his wonderful popularity in this country and the many thrilling incidents that marked his life.

A large number of the delegates and their friends got a glimpse of salt water yesterday, when hundreds went to Nahant.

Special cars that went through to Nahant were boarded at the Copley-Plaza at 2:30 in the afternoon. Some of the girls and men took a swim in the water, a great many climbed over the great rocks that line the coast, and practically all were interested in seeing the home of Henry Cabot Lodge, senior Senator from Massachusetts.

A large number of red-hot baseball fans who had rather see a ball game than visit all the beaches on the United States coast, journeyed out to Fenway Park and saw the World's Champions play as they should, and win a double-header.

FLOOD DEATH TOLL INCREASED TO 49

By International News Service.

Raleigh, N. C., July 20.—Additional bodies found during the last twenty-four hours in widely separated districts of North Carolina bring the total deaths resulting from the recent floods up to forty-nine. A score or more persons are yet missing.

Funeral of John M. Conry.

The funeral of John M. Conry, late superintendent of sewers in the East Boston district and a brother of Joseph A. Conry, Russian Consul in Boston, was held today from his home No. 1 Monument square, East Boston. A solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated at the Church of the Sacred Heart by the Rev. Edward J. Mealey of Wilmington, Del., a cousin of the late Mr. Conry. Burial was at Holyhood cemetery, Brookline.

CHARLES E. SIMMS, JR., former Harvard student, who admits stealing jewelry valued at $1,200 from Newton man's home.

CONFESSES TO GEM THEFTS AT NEWTON

tor O'Halloran of the Newton police in which Simms is said to have admitted stealing the jewelry and promised to make restitution was made to the court by the inspector. He also produced evidence to show that Simms had pawned a watch for $9, a $350 diamond ring for $75, a pin worth $200 for $20 and another pin valued at $120 for $15.

ASKS CONTINUANCE.

Simms was represented in court by P. S. Cunniff. He asked for a continuance of the case, saying that he was convinced that the newspaper reports of the case so far had been very unjust to his client.

Allen P. Craig, a well-known Watertown business man, who supplied bonds for Simms at the time of his arrest, told the court that he was willing to continue the bond, but did not wish to extend it over more than one day.

Litchfield was represented by Grosvenor Calkins. He said that he believed the amount of bail was only fair if it were raised to cover the amount of the jewelry that had been stolen. He said that Simms was devoid of mental responsibility and for that reason asked that the amount be raised from $1,000 to $1,500. A continuance was granted until August 14.

GIRLS SENTENCED FOR FALSE ALARM

Haverhill, July 20.—Two girls, who gave the names of Louise Barker and Mildred Smith, but whom the police say are Dorothy Brown and Julia Talbot, twenty-two and seventeen years old, respectively, were sentenced to six months in the House of Correction at Lawrence by Judge Winn in Haverhill District Court today charged with sounding a false fire alarm. The girls pleaded not guilty.

LINER SINKS COAL BARGE OFF JERSEY

Seagirt, N. J., July 20.—During a thick fog the incoming steamer Comus, from New Orleans, collided with a coal barge off here today. The barge's crew of seven men were rescued. The barge sank rapidly. The damage to the Comus was slight.

Bedford Tax Rate $19.

Bedford, July 20.—The tax rate for 1916 was announced today as $19, being the lowest enjoyed by the town for four years. Last year the rate was $15.50.

FRAUD HAMPERS BABY PLAGUE FIGHT

By International News Service.

Washington, July 20.—Impostors representing themselves to be officers of the United States public health service have been obtaining privileges, and in some cases money by appearing in several cities on the pretext of making investigations in connection with the epidemic of infantile paralysis, according to information obtained at the health service headquarters here today.

As a result all officers and physicians have been ordered to wear their olive drab uniforms while on duty. There have been several cases of impostors in New York city, it was said, but the fraud is worked chiefly in small towns.

Records Broken in Bay State by Spread of Infant Paralysis

All records for new cases of infantile paralysis were broken when the cases of eleven additional victims were reported today to the State Board of Health.

The eleven new cases raised the total number reported in the State during the month to fifty-three. This establishes another record.

Members of the State Board of Health are making new plans in the state-wide campaign to wipe out the disease. A physician has been sent to the western part of the State to study conditions in that territory.

The new cases reported are:

Bedford—Richard Morton, No. 9 North street.

Athol—Elsie H. King, No. 9 Pleasant street.

Sheffield—Agnes Courtney, No. 58 Main street.

Longfield—Francis Dragoon, No. 3 Dalton street.

North Adams—Helen Gallon, Margaret Gallon and William Gallon, all of Massachusetts avenue, and Lawrence Powell of No. 46 Mill street.

Easthampton—William Dehrowski.

Webster—Mary Madeau and Peter Prigs.

State health officials are interested in the fact that three deaths have occurred in one family in North Adams. These cases are being subjected to a special investigation.

Officials of the Brockton Board of Health have declined to allow children from Brooklyn to come to the city on a visit. The Brockton Health officials found that the children lived in the infected district in Brooklyn.

Decrease in Number of New York Cases

New York, July 20.—An increase of one in the number of deaths from infantile paralysis in the last twenty-four hours, as compared with the previous twenty-four hours, was recorded today. The number of cases, however, decreased. The total number of cases reported today was 210, as compared with 143 for the previous twenty-four hours, and the number of deaths 21, as compared with 26, the previous day's record.

GUARDIAN PAYNE ACCUSED BY HEIRESS OF CARESSING HER

Hartford, Conn., July 20.—Judge Marvin will hear arguments at the opening of court today on the petition of Charles C. Paine of Barnstable County, Mass., for his appointment as conservator over Miss Marion Pomeroy Smith to guard her personal inheritance of $50,000.

Paine spent a trying hour on the witness stand Wednesday afternoon explaining an incident relating to a new pair of high boots Miss Smith had purchased, regarding which the girl had testified previously.

Marion said she had purchased the boots in Boston at the suggestion of Mrs. Paine, wife of the conservator. She called at Paine's office to secure an allowance to meet the weekly bills. She swore Paine took deep interest in her new boots and caressed them in the privacy of his inner office. "He put his hand right on my knee," she said. She jumped to her feet and illustrated to the court how she gave vent to her indignation.

"I tried to slap his face, but he was too quick for me. He laughed and said something like, 'Warm all going to the same place.' Then I left the office and I have not been there since, nor have I spoken to him.

Jewel Losses in Newport Laid to Luck or Raffles

Newport, July 20.—Unless a "gentleman" burglar is at work here, the members of the exclusive set among the Summer guests are suffering from a severe attack of bad luck. The latest to report the loss of valuable jewels was Dona Juan Riano, wife of the Spanish Ambassador to the United States. She has missed a diamond star brooch, and she believes that she either lost it at the dinner dance given by Mrs. Stuart Duncan here, or while she was motoring back to the embassy.

A month ago, Mrs. William Storrs Wells lost a diamond pear shaped brooch, and it has not yet been located. She also believes that she dropped the piece of jewelry at some social affair.

Runaway Horse Kills Aged Man in Somerville

John E. Matthews, 71, who resided with his daughter, Mrs. Fatherland, at No. 152 Walnut street, Somerville, was run over and killed today by a wagon of the Davis Ice Cream Company at the corner of Broadway and Walnut street, Somerville.

Richard J. Nixon of No. 83 Windsor street, Cambridge, driver of the wagon, was watering his horses near the corner of Broadway and Walnut street, when they became frightened. They started to run and Nixon attempted to swing onto the wagon, but was thrown heavily to the ground. The horses tore down Broadway, and Matthews, who was crossing the street, was unable to get out of their path.

"DRY" CONVENTION CHEERS HANLLY

St. Paul, Minn., July 20.—The stage was set here today for a battle royal between the Hanley and Sulzer forces for the Prohibition presidential nomination. Leaders completed their plans for the hurried adoption of a party platform, of the convention nominations and a quick adjournment.

Ill-feeling has been smouldering for several days over the activities of anti-Catholic workers in behalf of Sulzer. These agents wanted a plank inserted in the platform declaring it to be the sense of this convention that the church and State be separated entirely and the row started.

The Indiana contingent, 160 strong, started whooping things up for Hanley early. They marched to the Auditorium waving flags, and paraded the aisles for a half-hour cheering a special Hanley song. It was the first real demonstration of the convention.

The day gave early promise of being one of fireworks. Mr. Sulzer was scheduled to make a Roosevelitian descent on the convention in an attempt to stampede it into nominating him.

The Hanley forces claimed they already have pledged more than enough votes to put their candidate over.

Ira J. Landrith of Tennessee probably will get the vice-presidential nomination.

CANDIDATES FOR CONGRESS GET HUGHES' AID

By International News Service.

New York, July 20.—Important conferences for the making of plans to insure victory for the congressional candidates as well as for the heads of the Republican ticket were held today at the headquarters of Charles Evans Hughes.

Mr Hughes was the guest of honor at a luncheon attended by members of the senatorial campaign committee, the congressional campaign committee and the national campaign committee, where the discussion of plans was continued.

Before the luncheon William R. Willcox, campaign manager for Mr. Hughes, had discussed campaign plans with the members of the various committees and steps were taken to secure strong co-operation between all parts of the Republican ticket in the field in the campaign.

The following members of the congressional committee attended the luncheon, which was given at the Hotel Astor:

Sloop, Virginia; Foss, Ohio; Campbell, Kansas; Austin, Tennessee; and Secretary Eversman of Washington, D. C., who is not a member of Congress.

The following members of the Senatorial committee were present: Weeks, Massachusetts; Smoot, Utah; Wadsworth, New York; Sterling, South Dakota, and Curtis, Kansas.

Members of the campaign committee who were present were: Adams, Iowa; Colby, New Jersey; Estabrook, New Hampshire; Garfield, Ohio; Hennessy, Indiana; Hart, Kentucky; Ickes, Illinois; Martin, Virginia; Parsons, New York; Strauss, New York; Perkins, New York, and Warren Michigan.

Others at the luncheon were Cornelius N. Bliss, Jr., treasurer of the national committee; Fred Upham, who is known as the "western treasurer," and James R. Reynolds, secretary of the national committee.

LAUNCH SPANISH SUBMARINE HERE

The Spanish submarine, Isaac Peral, the first war vessel built in this country for Spain, was launched at the Fore River ship yard in Quincy today, with Senora de Riano, wife of the Spanish Ambassador, as its sponsor. Diplomatic and military representatives of the Castilian government attended the christening.

The Isaac Peral, named for a Spanish inventor, is nearly 200 feet long, or almost as large as the latest submarines of the M class now under construction for the United States in Fore River.

Its powerful, oil-burning Diesel engines are expected to give it a surface speed of 14 knots. Electric motors are to drive it up to 10½ knots when submerged.

The normal cruising radius is 3,50 miles without replenishing fuel supply, and this "normal" without replenishing, can be extended to 6,000 miles if necessary. For armament the submarine has four torpedo tubes all mounts a three-inch gun.

The hull is double. The outer skins shaped like a ship, the inner one is a cigar.

GASOLINE PRICE LOWEST ON COAS

According to figures disclosed Boston today, Massachusetts automobilists pay less for gasolene th motorists in New York and Clevela and equal to the prices paid in Dever and Louisville.

The prevailing price of gasole today in Massachusetts is 26 cen while automobilists in New Yo and Cleveland are forced to pay cents.

The figures indicate that wh prices are abnormally high throu out the country, there appears to no uniform price for all places. Ev in some cities there is more than o price, like in Buffalo, where the ad ed retail price is 25 cents, while t maker of a certain automobile plies his customers at 21 cents.

Los Angeles and Detroit dealers selling gasolene at 19 cents.

$2,000,000 ORDERS AT ANNUAL SHOE FAI

The Eighth National Shoe d Leather Market Fair, which closes week's exposition at Mechanics building last night, attracted re than 50,000 shoe and leather trademen and sightseers. The management declared the exposition unqualified success and estimated that over $2,000,000 worth of and leather orders were left bed with the exhibitors by the visiting buyers.

A great many countries never fore doing business at an Amerish shoe and leather fair had represetatives at the Market-Fair this and several hundreds of thousand dollars worth of orders from all and Central American, European and Australasian countries are expe to result.

WILL PROBE DEATH OF SKEFFINGTN

By International News Servh

London, July 20.—Premier Ash announced today that a governt investigation has been ordered to the death of Sheehy Skeffington Irish writer, who was shot at Dub of the Dublin uprising without formality of court-martial. 'SHOOT TO KILL,' LATEST ORDER TO BOYS OF 9TH

SWEETSER DECLARES WAR ON THE SNIPERS

By BERT FORD.

Second Mass. Brigade Headquarters, El Paso, Tex., July 20.—The Third Battalion of the Ninth Regiment from Massachusetts, Major John J. Barry, assigned to outpost duty, was instructed to kill Mexicans who fired on them and to fire in volleys instead of scattered shots.

Said General E. Leroy Sweetser, commander of the Second Massachusetts Brigade, in giving Major Barry final instructions for outpost officers:

"Don't allow the men to shoot until fired upon, but with the first shot shoot to get them.

"Fire in volleys and fire to kill.

"We intend to put a stop to sniping and unprovoked attacks.

"Remember now, Major, we want our men to get them when they do fire and to get them good."

"If they start anything, we'll finish it and finish it to the queen's taste," replied Major Barry, as four companies left camp to defend the five miles of barbed wire and river defining the boundary.

BELL APPROVES ORDERS.

"And just one thing more," added General Sweetser, "have your men, Major, stop and search every person who crosses the line in either direction."

These orders followed the approval by General George Bell, Jr. commanding of the El Paso military district, of the action taken by Captain James F. Hickey of L Company, of Natick, in answering the fire of fifteen uniformed Mexicans and the killing of two or three skirmishers in the field on the Natick men from across the Rio Grande at the Felix Martinez ranch on the outskirts of the village of Chihuahita Tuesday morning.

Colonel Edward L. Logan, commander of the Ninth, and General Sweetser indorsed the action of Captain Hickey and his men and congratulated them for their bravery under fire.

When announcement was made that General Bell had joined the "Amen circle," there was rejoicing not only in the teepees of the "Fighting Ninth," but throughout the length and breadth of Camp Cotton, and at Camp Pershing on the hill five miles away, every man in the 7,000 or more Bay State troops strung along the border sung the praises of the sixty braves from Natick.

And perhaps the "rookies" of the company, left in camp to become acclimated, did not feel disappointed to miss the first border skirmish in which a militia unit participated.

NINTH TROOPERS PRAISED.

"You fellows down here don't seem much scared or excited over that little scrap down the river," said General Bell as he dropped into General Sweetser's tent at Brigade Headquarters to pay his respects and to let the Massachusetts men know that they had done exactly right.

Evidence was procured proving that the attack on the Ninth's outposts was made by Carranzistas despite a statement issued by General Gonzales, commander of the northern district of Mexico, that de facto troops were not engaged in the scrimmage.

ROOKIES ON FIRST HIKE

By WILLARD H. DAVIS.

With the Second Massachusetts Regiment at Columbus, N. M., July 20.—(Seventy-five words deleted by censor)—There is great rejoicing in the "rookies" quarters of the western Massachusetts unit as a result of the returning of the so-called "wandering minstrels" the four rookies who got left behind at Deming, Texas, while en route to the Second's camp.

Tired, rain-sore and hungry, the four lads threw themselves into the outstretched arms of their mates, who had commenced to think they were lost. They were Edward J. Noble of L Company, Greenfield, and Charles H. Raymond, George F. Howe and Lawrence Russell, all of M Company, Adams.

The lads explained their tardiness, stating that they stopped for an ice cream soda at the waiting station, finishing just in time to see the end of the train about one-quarter of a mile down the track.

They went into executive session to see what they would do. While the body were in debate in rolled another troop train bearing soldiers from Minnesota. They told their story to the train quartermaster and were taken aboard. They landed at Fort San Houston, San Antonio, Texas. There they were feasted and entertained and were then shipped to their proper destination.

They were glad to get back among their own fold once more. Their happiness was sort of punctured, however, for today they start doing punishment duty.

Such is the life of a soldier. The recruits yesterday saw their first bit of actual work on the border when they joined Major Beckham's battalion on a six-mile hike across the desert. They stood up remarkably well and came into camp singing "The life of a desert for me."

There were a few sore arms and one or two "big heads," due to the last typhoid inoculation, but the new men are game.

The rookies, however, had the fright of their young lives. There is a large timber wolf now at Chaplain Danker's house, kept as a pet by one of the surgeons of the New Mexico unit, situated next to the recruits' camp.

In some unknown manner "Rags"—the wolf—broke the chain about midnight and went on a rampage down the camp street looking for her master. It got into one of the streets occupied by the lads who had only been here two days. I've been told there was a near-riot when the news reached them. Out poured the half-clad in every conceivable kind of night apparel.

Playful "Rags" would let out a howl, jump in the feet in the air and start for one if the frightened individuals. The wolf would jump but the rookies would jump higher.

Timothy Moriarty, the heavyweight contestant from Westfield, did a hundred yards in record time. Some climbed the tent poles; others ducked under the cots.

Finally the owner of "Rags" heard the commotion and recognized the familiar howl. He soon had the innocent animal back in his tent, but it was some time before the rookies would go back to the cots.

Yesterday the men went in a body to the regiment's tent to get a real look at the beast which had caused them such an uneasy night. They petted and played with "Rags" and have now become well acquainted.

HOW MAGNESIA HELPS DYSPEPTICS

Patent Foods, Dieting And Medicines No Longer Necessary.

Many dyspeptics have now discontinued the use of expensive patent foods, are eating what they please in reason, yet no longer take harmful drugs, medicines and artificial digestants to relieve their stomach trouble. Instead, they just take a teaspoonful of pure bisurated magnesia in a little water after meals, with the result that they not only save money but enjoy much better health and the stomach no longer gives them trouble.

Those who have once tried bisurated magnesia never dread the approach of meal time because they know that this wonderful antacid and food corrective which absolutely does not injure the stomach and which can be obtained at little cost at almost any drug store will instantly neutralize their excessive stomach acidity and prevent all possibility of their food souring or fermenting in the stomach. Try this plan yourself, but be sure to get bisurated magnesia, as magnesia in other forms often have a strong laxative effect which is not desirable.

CHECK THAT ECZEMA BEFORE IT GETS SERIOUS

That little patch of eruption may be nothing more than a slight annoyance now. But, if neglected, such things have an uncomfortable way of spreading and becoming really serious—turning into itching, burning skin troubles that make life almost unbearable.

So don't take chances. Nip it in the bud with a few simple treatments with Resinol. Usually the first bathing with Resinol Soap and dressing with Resinol Ointment stop all itching, and soon the irritation is entirely cleared away. Doctors have prescribed Resinol for over 20 years, so that it is not an experiment, but a record of proven merit. All druggists sell Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap. But if you want a sample of each, free, write to Dept. 5A-R, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.—Advertisement.

$50,000 Ty Cobb "Comes Back" Nuxated Iron Makes Him Winner—Greatest Baseball

Batter of all time says Nuxated Iron filled him with renewed life after he was weakened and all run down. Supplies that "stay there" strength and vim that makes men of mark and women of power.

Well known physician who has studied widely in this country and Europe, explains why taking iron enabled Ty Cobb to "come back" so quickly and show such tremendous strength and endurance. Says ordinary nuxated iron will often increase the strength and endurance of delicate, nervous folks 200 per cent. in two weeks' time.

New York, N. Y.—When interviewed in his apartment at Bretton Hall, Ty Cobb said: "Hundreds of people write to me to know how I train and what I do to keep up that force and vitality which enables me to play practically every day of the entire baseball season. They wonder why I can play a better game today than when I was younger.

"The secret is keeping up the supply of iron in my blood—exactly what everyone else can do if they will.

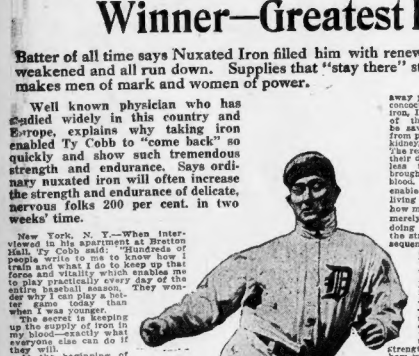
"At the beginning of the present season I was nervous and run down from a bad attack of tonsolitis, but soon the papers began to say, 'Ty Cobb has 'come back,' he is hitting up to his old stride.' The secret was Iron—Nuxated Iron filled me with renewed life.

"Now they say I'm worth $50,000 a year to any baseball team, yet without plenty of iron in my blood I wouldn't be worth five cents. Nuxated Iron supplies that 'stay there' strength and vim that makes men of mark and women of power. Continuing, Mr. Sauer said: 'Mr. Cobb's case is only one of hundreds in which I could cite from my own personal experience, which proves conclusively the astonishing power of nuxated iron to restore strength and vitality even in most complicated chronic conditions.'

Not long ago a man came to me who was nearly half a century old and asked me to give him a preliminary examination for life insurance. I was astonished to find him with the blood pressure of a boy of 20 and as full of vigor, vim and vitality as a young man; in fact a young man he really was notwithstanding his age. The secret he said was taking iron—nuxated iron had filled him with renewed life. At 50 he was in bad health; at 46 he was careworn and nearly all in. Now at 60 a miracle of vitality and his face beaming with the buoyancy of youth. As I have said a hundred times over iron is the greatest of all strength builders. If people would only throw away patent medicines and nauseous concoctions and take simple nuxated iron, I am convinced that the lives of thousands of persons might be saved, who now die every year from pneumonia, grippe, consumption, kidney, liver and heart trouble, etc. The real true cause which started their diseases was nothing more nor less than a weakened condition brought on by lack of iron in the blood. Iron is absolutely necessary to enable your blood to change food into living tissue. Without it, no matter how much or what you eat, your food merely passes through you without doing you any good. You don't get the strength out of it and as consequence you become weak, pale and sickly looking, just like a plant trying to grow in a soil deficient in iron. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five grain tablets of ordinary nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. I have used dozens of nervous run-down people who were ailing all the while, double their strength and endurance and entirely get rid of all symptoms of dyspepsia, liver and other troubles in from ten to fourteen days' time simply by taking iron in the proper form. And this after they had in some cases been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit. But don't take the old forms of reduced iron, iron acetate or tincture of iron simply to save a few cents. You must take iron in form that can be easily absorbed and assimilated like nuxated iron if you want it to do you any good, otherwise it may prove worse than useless.

Many an athlete and prize fighter has won the day simply because he knew the secret of growing strength and endurance and filled his blood with iron before he went into the ring, while many another has gone to inglorious defeat simply for the lack of iron.—E. Sauer, M. D.

NOTE—Nuxated Iron, recommended above by Dr. Sauer, is not a patent medicine nor secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists and whose iron constituents are widely prescribed by physicians in their private practice. Unlike the older inorganic iron preparations, nuxated iron is easily assimilable, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach; on the contrary, it is a most potent remedy in nearly all forms of indigestion as well as for nervous, run-down conditions. The manufacturers have such great confidence in Nuxated Iron that they offer to forfeit $100.00 to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under 60 who lacks iron and increase their strength 100 per cent, or over in four weeks' time, provided they have no serious organic trouble. They also offer to refund the money if it does not at least double your strength and endurance in ten days' time. It is dispensed in this city by all good druggists.



Nuxated Iron has filled me with renewed life and vigor. I play a better game to-day than when I was younger.

STORM LEVELS TENTS OF RHODE ISLAND MEN

By R. E. BAILEY.

El Paso, July 20.—Drills were the regular order with the men of the Rhode Island troops in camp here today. More horses are expected for the cavalrymen in camp here, and mounted drills will start the last of this week.

A sandstorm came up, and the tents not the heavy ones, were blown down, causing considerable damage.

A band concert was given last night at Fort Bliss, which was attended by many of the men. It is expected that a band for the men of "Little Rrody" will be on hand soon, as recruiting is going on fast in the State for the musicians. This is one of the things that the cavalry regiment now lacks, and all the men are now looking forward to their own band.

New Recruit Company to Be Formed

Camp Whitney, July 20.—The strength of the recruits in camp was increased by fifteen. Today a new company will be formed as part of the third provisional regiment, to be known as Recruit Company No. 6. Lieutenant Vernon Campbell, C. A. C., will be in charge.

It was announced today that Colonel Halcomb, U. S. A., would be appointed colonel of the provisional cavalry regiment, a part of the new brigade of militia cavalry being formed under General Bliss, which is now in camp here.

Lieutenant Fred B. Nield of B Troop has been appointed officer of the day, and is in command of the guarded the cavalry troops in El Paso today.

A Battery today had a light drill both in the morning and in the afternoon, and have received their horses from the depot quartermaster, as well as munition for their guns. Captain Chaffee is now drilling his men for an actual campaign.

The ambulance company is now drilling every day, and is fast getting into shape. There are no men on the sick list save Private Gardner of B Troop, who reported ill today as a result of an infection to the arm from inoculation for typhoid, and the "medico's" report that he is much improved.

REPORT VILLA'S ARMY IS NOW CLOSING IN ON CHIHUAHUA

By WALLACE E. SMITH,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

El Paso, Tex., July 20.—Francisco Villa's fierce warriors, fighting with all the fanatical frenzy that is inspired by their renegade chieftain, closed in on Chihuahua City today.

An advance band far to the north and west of Carranza's northern headquarters city severed the government's line of communication late yesterday and today the border expected hourly the news that the actual attack on Chihuahua City had been started.

For the past week, according to the stories told by refugees, wounded Carranzistas have been straggling into Chihuahua City.

Every force sent by General Jacinto Trevino to check the onward rush of Villista forces has either disappeared completely or has been thrown back, cut to pieces and routed. The latest squad of wounded arriving reported Villa only ten miles from Chihuahua.

Carranza cavalry has been sent to drive them off. The last cavalry outfit that went into the hills after a Villa band has not yet returned.

ATTACK DEFENCES.

The Carranza entrenchments along the San Pedro River on the edge of Chihuahua City have been fired on by other companies of Villa's command. The remarkable mobility of Villa's command has always made them a unique military problem. With Villistas on four sides of Chihuahua City, Trevino would have his hands full with defence even if the majority of Chihuahua residents were not Villistas and ready to make trouble from the inside with the approach of their chosen leader.

So swift has been the progress of his fighting men that Villa himself is said to have come from his headquarters in the Rio Florida bottoms to lead the attack on Chihuahua City. He threatened to do this in his latest communication to General Trevino. At that time he also warned Trevino that he would sack the city and execute all Carranza officers.

Villa, with the foremost of his troops, was reported by the wounded Carranzistas straggling back from Palomas, where Martin Lopes led a Villista band in an attack on a Carranza troop train. Martin Lopes is a brother of Pablo Lopes, Villa's chief villain at Santa Ysabel and Columbus. Pablo recently was executed in Chihuahua, and Martin, it is thought, will be given the honor of leading the first Villista outfit into the city where his brother died.

In the face of the Villistas' unchecked advance, the border hears of renewed demands of Don Venustiano Carranza that U. S. Pershing expedition be withdrawn.

Militiamen continue to arrive in the El Paso district and before the mobilization ends it is reported that 70,000 of them will be encamped here.

CURED HIMSELF OF THE LIQUOR HABIT

A Missouri Man After Drinking for Thirty-five Years Banished His Craving for Liquor With a Simple Home Recipe.

Mr. Thos. J. D. O'Bannon, a well known resident of Missouri, living at R. F. D. No. 3, Fredericktown, Mo., banished his craving for liquor with a simple recipe which he mixed at home.

Mr. O'Bannon recently made the following statement: "I am 51 years old and had drank for thirty-five years. My craving was so great I could not quit liquor. More than a year ago I had the following simple recipe filled and began taking it and it entirely banished my craving for liquor. To 7 oz. of water add 20 grains of muriate of ammonia, a small box of Varlex Compound and 10 grains of pepsin. Take a teaspoonful three times a day. Any druggist can mix it for you or supply the ingredients at very little cost. This recipe can be taken of your own accord or given to anyone secretly in coffee, tea, milk or in food, as it has no taste, color or smell and is perfectly harmless. I believe any drunkard can cure himself with this simple recipe."

BEST BABIES HAVE THEIR LAST TEST

Two champion babies of New England met at the Copley Plaza Hotel yesterday and were re-examined by a board of judges to determine which should carry away championship honors.

Seventeen-months-old Vernon K. Soucia from Caribou, Me, acted as host in his private rooms at the hotel where Harold B. McDonald arrived at exactly 3 p. m.

The two babies looked at each other with solemn eyes, not too friendly, while admiring and anxious friends and relatives stood about hoping their favorite son would win.

Dr Edith Hale Swift was one of the first judges to arrive, and she spent some time asking the mother of Vernon Soucia all manner of questions having to do with food, habits, history, etc.

Then other judges came, among whom were Dr. H. I. Bowditch, visiting physician for the Boston Floating Hospital; Dr. E. P. Ruggles of the Homeopathic Hospital, and Dr. Mary T. Moore, also of the Homeopathic Hospital.

The behavior of the two babies throughout the entire examination was so nearly perfect that the judges were astonished to find two boys living hundreds of miles apart with dispositions so nearly alike.

Finally, after much discussion and comparison of good and weak points, the judges took a ballot. The champions were allowed to return to their mothers, who had been anxiously waiting for an hour.

The physicians took their departure with a mysterious silence and a sealed verdict, to be announced in next Sunday's AMERICAN, when every man and woman in New England interested in perfect babyhood may read who is champion and exactly what made him what he is—a perfect baby, who will later come up for comparison with champion babies from all over the United States.

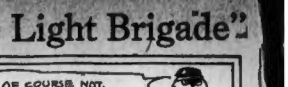
BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS



Hot Scramble for Lead
Sox in Thick of Fight

By HERMAN NICKERSON.

The race in the American League has tightened up to such an extent that for the present it doesn't matter which one of the first three clubs holds first place. This seems to mean that the games to be played at Fenway Park between the World's Champions and the Tygers for the balance of the week will have much to do with the manner in which the clubs will stand when the Eastern clubs get back from their last Western trip.

The Red Sox have shown speed and fighting spirit. They have had some good pitching and have hit the ball. They have also forced things such an extent that the breaks in the game have come their way in generous quantity.

Manager Carrigan has directed his team with success, which was based on good judgement in the pinches. Gradually the men have gained in confidence until they appear to believe they can win without Tris Speaker.

Now that is some stunt when you figure the number of hits that go to centrefield that would never have been or could never be hits had Tris been in that garden.

The pitchers for a while lost confidence, but today they look as if they could win with the team batting as it does.

WALKER NOT UP TO GAME.

When a man is placed in the position Walker has been it is a sure test for him. Comparisons are things that hurt, and just now Walker cannot be said to be playing a brilliant game. He is a poor judge of a ball that comes to him on a line, no matter whether high or low, and in the double-header yesterday he showed a roving habit that proved fatal in one particular. He has fallen off in his batting also, which is something an outfield should have in its entirety if the team is to repeat.

Lewis and Hoper cover about all of the outfield as it is, and these good fielders are hitting, being in no small degree responsible for the success of the present games.

The general excellence of the infield, whether with "Hobby" or Gainer on first, is marked. Menikken as a pinch hitter is the most reliable man, and it takes a pretty good hitter to stop left hooks without having looked over any pitching and deliver as he does.

SHORE HAS A BAD DAY.

Ernie Shore had a bad day yesterday. He didn't pass but two men, but as they say, he couldn't get them past the plate. In other words the Tygers could see, did see and did hit him.

It looked as if he had been kept in too long, when Carrigan removed him with the bases filled, turning the rescue stunt over to Dutch Leonard in the fourth.

Dutch proved equal to the occasion and the longer he worked the batter he got. In only one inning did the Tygers find him.

The pitching staff has not settled down to a reliable basis as yet, but with Mays going as nicely as he is, Leonard and Ruth in the pink of condition and Foster in shape there is much to look for from it.

Jack Barry is a wonderful ball player. It is only recently, or since his return to the game after his illness, that the fans fully realized his great importance as a member of the team. He has saved many a game through his great ground covering and accurate throwing.

SCOTT PLAYING BRILLIANTLY.

Scott continues to play a first-class game, while Gardner is apparently in for a run of hits. He started in the second game yesterday and showed good judgment and speed on the bases.

The World's Champions look more like a "repeater" every day. Of course they are not likely to make a clean-up with Detroit. This fighting bunch is too aggressive a ball club for that, but having taken the first two games they are more than likely to win the odd game of the remaining three to be played, which is playing the game at real championship speed.

Jennings has his men struggling all the time for those runs and it doesn't matter what the score is, or the inning for that matter; they go out after them and the team opposing the Tygers cannot afford to let up for a minute.

There is no telling when they will uncork a rally.

Ty Cobb's performance is the two games was far from remarkable, although he made a great throw to the plate.

He got but two hits for the day, which is slipping. Ty is a boy to watch at that. Having had a poor day he may turn and proceed to show what he can do. He always does in Boston.

The crowds have been large, displaying enthusiasm, proving that the city is set for another world's series and that the fans figure the Red Sox as one of the teams to compete for this honor.

The batteries for this afternoon have not been announced, as usual, so it is a guess. Dubuc may pitch for Detroit and Foster is likely to work for Boston. No matter which men are chosen, there is sure to be a ball game worth watching.

SOX NOTES

ANOTHER doubleheader takes. Fine work.

THE champions are surely keeping up a pennant-winning gait. The Tygers were dangerous at all times, but the boys hit that ball.

THE race is now settled down to the final grind before the Eastern clubs go West.

VEACH'S home run through the kindness of Walker was the first of its kind inside the grounds. Speaker drove one that hit the flag pole, but Veach's went a like over Walker's head to the limit of the centre field.

* * *

LEWIS made a great throw on Bush, nipping him at second on a single which he tried to stretch. Duffy, however, fell asleep on the bases soon after, being picked off first by Dauss.

* * *

HEILMAN'S hit in the fifth was a rank scratch. It bounced too high for Mays to knock it down.

* * *

BARRY has several black and blue marks to testify to being hit by pitcher. He doesn't crowd the plate either.

* * *

SAM CRAWFORD started for Stanage in the seventh inning, being given a warm reception by the fans. He hit the first ball to Mays and was thrown out.

* * *

A FREAK double play was pulled. Hobby lifted to Veach, scoring Mays in the fifth, and Dauss picked up his errand boy at first base, putting Barry on a throw to Stanage.

ANOTHER unusual play retired Dauss in the seventh. The ball he hit glanced off Mayer's glove, Scott juggled it, but Barry, who backed up the play, grabbed the ball, throwing Dauss out at first. Needless to say, Dauss was not hustling to the bag.

* * *

YOUNG made a running one-hand stab of a hit by Hooper that cut off plenty of trouble in the seventh. It was a play like Barry makes.

COBB'S hit came at his fifth time at bat.

LEONARD fanned Bush on three pitched balls in the eighth.

* * *

SOUTH BOSTON Council, K. of C., about 400 members, will attend today's game as guests of President J. J. Lannin.

* * *

PRESIDENT LANNIN had as his guests yesterday Judge John F. Crosby, Hon. John J. McNiham, rector of deeds; Hon. John F. O'Gorman, boulevard commissioner, all of Jersey City, and Judge Thomas P. Riley of Massachusetts. These gentlemen were guests of Mayor Curley at luncheon.

Cubs May Beat Mr. McGraw to Chas. Herzog

Cincinnati, July 20. — Chicago is now leading New York in the deal for Charles Herzog. President Weegham's offer of Outfielder Flack and $25,000 is the most acceptable of any made, according to President Herrmann.

Herrmann has decided to allow Hal Chase to manage the team for the remainder of the season, and for this reason he does not want Christy Mathewson.

McGraw is expected to present a new offer today.

Herzog is willing to go with either New York or Chicago, it is said, both teams having offered him nearly the same amount. According to Herzog the Weegham offer was $10,000 a year, the amount he is now receiving, and a bonus of $5,000 for signing.

SPORT FOOD

HELLO, PELLERS.

The weather is hotter than hades,
The streets and the boulevards bell,
But, take it from me, gents and ladies,
I am glad to get back here and toil.
I come not with visions of sorrow,
For work fills my soul with delight;
Besides, it is pay day tomorrow.
(I wrote this last Saturday night.)

One of the redeeming features of a vacation is that it comes but once a year.

We thought of a good paragraph one night last week in South Boston. It was a regular dyed-in-the-wool, home-run, honest-to-goodness big league paragraph. Just then Mike Haidy ordered another and we forget it.

Despite the condition of the climate it is a pleasure to come back and read the newspapers. We don't have to read any more about the Orpet case.

Some persons gain a certain amount of enjoyment by attending murder trials. Others visit the beaches in Summer.

VACATIONS ARE NIX.

It is easy enough to be pleasant
When working for others each year,
But the man worth while is the one who can smile
When he hasn't a darn thing to do.

In spite of all the press agent work, the American Derby was a dismal failure. We had two dollars ($2.00) on Churchill.

THE SPORT OF KINGS.

Two kings, having gazed on several horses in the act of racing, yawned. If any of the dukes or earls who clustered around them had yawned they would have lost their jobs. But if is a king's privilege to yawn whenever he feels that way. A king can do no wrong. If George the Fifth or Hirih or Yeshyh or whatever his number is (his wife has his number), were seen rushing the cue down to Conway's everyday in Newport would order diamond-studded groveiers. But that has nothing to do with the story.

The story is that two kings, having yawned at a horse race, desired some really exciting form of sport.

"How about a war?" said George. "That sounds good," said Bill.

"I'll bet a million men," said George, "that my navy can lick your army."

"I gotcha, George," says Bill, "and I'll raise you a couple of million men."

"You're on," says George. "I haven't got the men in my pocket, but I get a lot of friends that'll stake me."

(P. S.—They have been playing ever since and everything has been going into the kitty.)

Compared with the president of a republic, a king has a soft job. He doesn't have to make campaign speeches.

On the other hand, a king's subject has the edge on the etties of a republic. He doesn't have to listen to campaign speeches.

Looking over Connie Mack's team,

one is led to believe that there is no law against child labor in Philadelphia.

THE BACK SLAPPER.

"You are tanned, Father William," the young man cried
As he hit him a slap on the back.
"I know it, young man," Father William replied
As he hit him a terrible whack.
"You are rude, Father William," the young man cried.
"And I can't see the reason why."
"If you touch that there sunburnt old back," he replied,
"I will hit you again on the eye."

JOHNSON CRITICISES NATIONAL LEAGUERS

Cincinnati, July 20—President B. B. Johnson of the American League, in his minority report in the case of C. H. Ebbets of the Brooklyn Nationals against the Newark International League Club, contends that the decision of the International League was just, and he sharply criticises the finding of President Tener, of the National League, and Chairman Herrmann, who wrote the majority report.

The majority decision, which Johnson contends is at variance with the facts, denied the Brooklyn club's claim for $75,292.81 against the Newark Club, but allowed Brooklyn the difference between the amount received for the franchise of the Newark club by the International League and the net expenses incurred in operating the club during 1915 at Harrisburg, Pa., and Newark.

Evers Life of Braves
Back in Pastime Again

St. Louis, July 20.—Take the maxim silencer off Johnny Evers and the Braves look like just about the best ball club in the world. Such is the opinion of the St. Louis fans who have seen Trojan Jawn in his Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde act.

When the Braves were here on their last visit Evers was downhearted and disgusted. There was no fight in his work. He remarked: "This is the kind of baseball they want from me and this is what I'm going to give them."

But yesterday Evers, from the very first ball delivered by Pitcher Reese Williams, was on his toes. He was fussing, not with the umpires or the fans, but with the players. He exhibited the same spirit that was such a big factor in the Braves' triumph in 1914.

Evers steered the Braves off on their lead over the Cardinals yesterday. He singled in the opening inning, scoring Maranville, and, before the frame closed, the Braves had five runs up on the score board.

The Boston boys dribbled along and just played with the Cardinals, winning an easy game, 10-1.

CARDS WELL DRUBBED.

It was a lopsided score and a bogus ball game, a very uneven one because the Braves had on their swatting togs. It was really quite a feat to tame the Cardinals by such a big score, as Huggins' family had won three straight from the Giants prior to yesterday's massacre.

The Cardinals were set to break into the first division, being but two games out of fourth place. They had hopes of going through the Braves just as they mussed up the Giants. But Evers and his associates were too much for them. With Evers at second the Braves looked like they did when they won the pennant in 1914.

Rudolph had an easy game to pitch, as his teammates got him off with a five-run lead. There really was nothing to the encounter after the opening inning. Here's a synopsis of the slaughter in that session: Maranville sneaked in an infield single and went to second on a wild pitch. Evers singled to centre and the Rabbit was paid off.

HITS COME IN CLUSTERS.

After Whitt forced Evers, Magee singled and the young outfielder sped to third. Konetchy followed with a clean single, scoring Whitt once, while Magee advanced to the far corner. Enid Williams; enter Jasper.

A run to Smith filled the bags and Snodgrass sent Magee and Konetchy over on a single to centre. Gowdy kept up the cannonading by driving safely over second, Smith tallying while Snodgrass was snuffed out trying to follow the sorrel-topped third sacker over the pan.

The Braves came back with another run in the second. Maranville, first up, walked and stole second. After Evers flied to J. Smith, Wilhoit beat out an infield tap and the Rabbit sped to third. Magee's one-spot sent Maranville home.

The Cardinals tallied their lone run off Rudolph in their half of the second, Miller's double and Gonzales' single netted the counter.

In the fourth Maranville made his third trip around the circuit. He started with a triple to deep right, and, after Evers was passed, came in on Wilhoit's long fly to "Chief" Wilson.

In the seventh Wilhoit paraded and Konetchy singled, Joe racing to third. The Big Train's wallop missed landing up among the bugs in right field by a very few feet. Next, the double steal was successfully pulled, with Wilhoit scoring, and then Snodgrass sent Konetchy over by rapping safely.

In the ninth Wilhoit singled and stole second; reached third on Konetchy's third hit and came home while the former Cardinal was allowing himself to be caught in a run-up between first and second.

NEW YORK RING TALK

NEW YORK, July 20.—Mel Coogan will tackle Eddie Dorsey, the Philadelphia negro, at the Clermont rink, Brooklyn, tonight.

HARRY PIERCE, the Brooklyn lightweight, boxes Joe Welling of Chicago at the Broadway Sporting Club, Brooklyn, Saturday night.

BLUEJACKET ON THE HOP.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 20.—Jim Bluejacket, the Indian pitcher recently sold by the Cincinnati club by the Bloomington (Three I. League) club subsequently sent back, has been turned over to the Milwaukee (American Association) club on a conditional sale.

BARNES FACES MEADOWS

St. Louis, July 20.—Jess Barnes and Lee Meadows will be the pitching pennoners for slab duty in today's game between the Braves and Cardinals.

EDDIE ROOT LANDS RACE.

Newark, N. J., July 20.—Eddie Root of Boston, with a handicap of forty-five yards, won the half-mile handicap for professionals at the Newark Velodrome.

LOW GOLF PAIR TIE AT 74

Ray Gorton and Larry Paton Excel in Qualifying Round in State Amateur Tourney.

At 10 o'clock this morning the first pair of the sixteen who qualified for match play in the Massachusetts open championship at the Wollaston Golf Club yesterday, drove off the first tee for the first round of match play.

The second round of match play to on tap for this afternoon, with the third and semi-final contest omorrow.

In the qualifying round Ray Gorton and Larry Paton, the latter representing the Homestead Golf Club tied for the lowest score. Both had 74, which was a stroke better than Freddie Wright, the title junior champion. Jesse Guilford, Trafford Hicks, Rod Brown and "Buck" Whittemore were 77, and Percy Gilbert 78. E. K. H. Fessenden, the Williams College athlete, turned in a card of 79.

In the lower half of the draw P. W. Whittemore, who scored a 77 in his round yesterday, with two sevens on his card, is playing Dick Pierce, the Yale golfer. Paton has been drawn to play G. H. Pushee. Whittemore and Paton will come together this afternoon if they are successful in winning their contests this morning.

Freddie Wright is playing E. K. H. Fessenden in the lower half of the draw. The pairings for the first round of match play this morning follows:

A. H. Goodale, Wollaston, vs. J. B. Hylan, Yesler.

Playoff No. 1 vs. P. F. Schofield, Albemarle.

R. M. Furres, Woodland, vs. E. W. Daley, Oakley.

L. J. Haselton, Springfield, vs. C. D. Wadsworth, Brae-Burn.

W. W. Degn, Oakley, vs. F. S. Lawrence, Woodland.

H. J. Murphy, Wollaston, vs. C. A. Hartwell, Oakley.

F. J. Jackson, Scarboro, vs. R. R. Gordon, Brae-Burn.

J. P. Guilford, Woodland, vs. Playoff No. 2.

R. R. Freeman, Wollaston, vs. W. P. Hunt, Oakley.

F. J. Wright, Jr., Scarboro, vs. E. K. H. Fessenden, Albemarle.

P. W. Whittemore, Country, vs. R. D. Pierce, Brae-Burn.

G. H. Paton, Homestead, vs. G. H. Pushee, Brae-Burn.

F. C. Jones, Jr., Albemarle, vs. C. T. Crocker, Country.

R. T. Hicks, Winchester, vs. R. S. Evans, Belmont Springs.

F. J. Malone, Oakley, vs. R. K. Stephenson, Winchester.

J. Lehane, Commonwealth, vs. C. A. Mason, Country.

BOXING BRIEFS and GOSSIP

The Armory A. A. management is to be commended for completing the Jack Britton-Johnny Griffiths match. These two lads, Chicago's best, just the kind the 140-142-pound boys in the world, are on deck at the Arena next Tuesday night. It smacks of clearly the banner battle of the season, and deserves to get Mish Murray and his confreres a packed house.

Providing Jimmie Johnston had a right to choose the welterweight crown for Ted (Kid) Lewis, when it was laying around unclaimed, it is now only fair to have Britton installed the champion in that class. He went on with Lewis three times during the past Winter and slipped the lanky Londoner three successful rallyingsign.

It was fairly close in Buffalo; it was Jack's fight by the proverbial mile in Brooklyn, and, when he and Ted went over the Dwyer route of twenty rounds in New Orleans, with a decision permitted, Jack fairly blinded Ted Kid with his left and won by the widest of margins.

Griffiths delivered big when he made his Boston bow some six weeks ago. He drew Willie Beecher, the veteran New York battler, for a foe, and made that gamecock look foolish. While on that trip to Boston Griffiths was billed as a lightweight, the writer stated the Akron flash must be all of 140 pounds, and prophesied he was in line to become enrolled among the welterweights.

Griffiths tried to come in at near the lightweight limit for Charley White in their July 4 battle at Canton, O., but Charley White's manager, allowed Griffiths a leeway of some five pounds, and Johnny even failed to scale that low. He was right there with White all the way, according to most of the press stories wired Eastward, but the fact that the Ohio scribes referees from claiming the triumph for an Ohio boy probably means Griffiths was fleeced by White. Anyhow, both White and Lewis claimed when in Boston for the recent Matt Wells-Jim Stanley fracas they won.

Griffiths announced after his battle with White that he was through trying to get down to the lightweight limit, and for the time being would step among the welterweights. His setto at the Arena next Tuesday night will mean his first start as an admitted welter, and he is up against the best boy in the division.

Viewed from every angle, the Britton-Griffiths bout should deliver and deliver big. Both boys can make 142 pounds without any difficulty, and if the Armory A. A. management brings them together at that notch it will mean that the set-to will be a championship affair, and will be productive of entertainment, as well as probably putting considerable belf to the house.

The club's matchmaker announces the preliminary events, as follows: Joe White vs. "Billy" Case, eight rounds; Dan McCormack vs. Johnny Lawless, six rounds, and Johnny Mario vs. Frankie McManus, six rounds. McMahon, a new-comer hereabouts, hails from Philadelphia, and is touted to be a rugged little ringster.

Larry Cooley made a highly successful debut as the Armory A. A. ref'ree in the windup event at Tuesday night's bout between Joe Welling and Walter Butler. He was Jimmie Johnston's pick, entirely agreeable to Mish Murray and his confreres, and gave such a good account of himself the chances are he will be kept in office.

The club is plenty big enough to have its ref'ree and have him serve at every show. Phil Bowers was doing excellent work. Matt Hinchey, one fine sportsman, had the misfortune to render a lot of unpopular decisions. Now that Cooley has signed on the job, he should be retained. What's more, Jimmie Johnston, Nate Lewis, Danny Morgan and the rest of the managers should not be permitted to object to him. Cooley is a high type of sportsman; a clean live-wire, knows the Queensberry game from every angle; handles a bout particularly well, as he's put up right for such toil, and is a mighty efficient picker.

The Commercial A. C. has a corking good show billed for tomorrow night at its quarters, on Green street, in the East End. It is to be Howard McRae of Cambridge against Young Britt of New Bedford, two of the speediest featherweights in New England, in the main number. McRae is in the best of trim this Summer. Britt has done a lot of good work in his home city, as well as in New York, but thus far has never operated in Boston.

Britt and McRae have agreed to come in at 124 pounds ringside. Matchmaker Freeman announces that forfeits are up, and is not anticipating any eleventh-hour wrangling. Bill Casey and Johnny Mack clash in the semi-final, while the two six-rounders will be given by Al Gerard and "Red" Kelly and Louis Gerard and Jack Sherry.

Harry Carlson, the crack young Brockton lightweight, is ready for the races, states Manager Freeman. Carlson was on the sick list for several weeks, but is back in good trim and will probably show at the C. A. C. in the near future.

HARVARD CLUB TO LOSE HOCKEY STAR

Elmer Wanamaker, star centre on the Harvard Club hockey team, is to finish his course in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology this Summer and will leave in the Fall for Montana, where he is to enter the employ of the Anaconda Copper Mining Company.

Harvard Clamps Lid on Summer School Tutors

Starting with the present Summer, no Harvard athlete can accept a position as counsellor in a Summer camp without permission from the college authorities. Such positions pay big money for little or no work, and the better known the athlete is the more money he receives for his services with the corresponding advantage of advertising accruing to the school from the use of his name as a testimonial.

Eddie Mahan, Harvard's crack football and baseball star, managed the Roxbury tutoring school branch at Red Top, Ct., last Summer, and Alexander Wilson, Yale's quarterback and leader, served in a like capacity with another branch of the school at Gales Ferry, Ct. Each man is said to have received $500 for about five weeks' work.

Any athlete could obtain positions paying good money in these camps, but henceforth the Harvard authorities are going to know just who accept the positions and what salary the occupant is to receive, so that there will be no chance for the Yale men to accuse Harvard athletes of accepting "graft" positions because of their athletic prominence.

FOOTBALL CRACK IS LOST TO YALE

New Haven, Ct., July 20.—Kirkpatrick, star lineman of the Yale freshman team last Fall and who was sure of a place on the varsity, will be lost to Yale football for this year and probably permanently because of ill-health.

The loss of Kirkpatrick will be particularly severe as two other star linemen, Jim Braden and Bart Olsen, are gone from the Yale squad because of the Yale battery for Tobyhanna. Football practice will start, September 4.

SOUTHERN GUN IS HIGH.

Philadelphia, July 20.—John Noel of Nashville, Tenn., won the Eastern special with ninty-nine breaks and Harry W. Lodge of this city landed first in the preliminary handicap with ninety-six breaks in the two events contested in the interstate trap-shooting competition on the traps of the Keystone Shooting League.

Hugh High Added to Bill Donovan's Hospital Squad

NEW YORK, July 20.—Add the name of Hughie High to the Yankees' hospital list.

During the second Yankee-Brown game the little outfielder injured his neck while attempting a "shoe-string catch" and had to retire.

Baker, Gilhooley, Maisel, Cullop and Caldwell are High's hospital mates.

Didier Travels at a 1:22 Clip, Beats Carman

Traveling at a 1:22 clip for most of the distance, with several miles at a 1:20 gait, Leon Didier defeated Clarence Carman in straight heats in their match motor-paced race at the Revere Beach track.

The first heat of ten miles was ridden in thirteen minutes, thirty-five and two-fifths seconds. Didier won by nearly a lap. Didier again got the jump in the second heat, which was at twenty miles, and defeated Carman by a full lap.

MABEL TRASK WINS $3,000 TROT STAKE

Cleveland, July 20.—Mabel Trask, from the Cox stable, was the star of the racing at North Randall, winning the $3,000 Ohio stake after losing the first heat to St. Frisco in 2:04¼, the fastest trotting heat of the year.

Two races went to Canadian horses. The Beaver, owned by E. J. Rochon, a Canadian soldier, landing the 2:06 pace, and Gilbert Patch the 2:15 event.

NEW LONDON TO BE DARK

New London, July 20.—Owing to opposition the directors of the New London Baseball Association today decided not to hold Sunday games here between league teams.

Westfeld Card Featured by $500 Stake

Westfeld, July 20.—Friday's Short Ship Circuit card at Woronoco Park includes the 2:15 pace, 2:18 trot and $500 stake for 2:20 pacers.

Baron Mariam looks best in the stake, while in the 2:15 pace Major Byers, Peter Piper, Laura Patch, Fern Go and Joseph K. S. are among the fleet ones carded to go. The last named is in the stable of Herman Tyson of Newark, Del., who put two winners over last week at Springfield.

Evan Williams looms up as the probable winner in the 2:18 trot. He is now in the stable of "Billy" Fleming, who purchased him recently at a reputed price of $900.

DADMUN ANSWERS HARVARD APPEAL

Harrie L. Dadmun, Harvard's football captain, has answered the appeal for more field candidates for the Harvard track team recently sent out by Captain Eddie Teschner and is now busily engaged in throwing the shot and hammer at Washington, Maine, where he is counsellor in a Summer camp.

Dadmun has heretofore specialized in football alone, but this new form of athletics will not only keep him in trim for the gridiron season but will also make him of real aid to Coach Pooch Donovan's track squad, next year.

SETS WORLD'S MARK IN GOLF TOURNEY

New York, July 20.—A world's record for the best seventy-two holes of golf in a professional tournament was made at Van Cortlandt Park when James M. Barnes, White Marsh, completed the four rounds in 276.

It was just two strokes better than McDonald Smith made at Scarsdale two years ago, when he won the Metropolitan championship. Barnes' totale were 67, 68, 67 and 73.

A Girl and a Man

Agnes's Aunt Tries to Make It Pleasant for Her Niece's Caller

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER VIII.

Copyright, 1916, Star Company.

Randolph Pickens paused on the landing before Miss Morley's flat, panting from his upward climb and the sudden vision of Agnes, standing waiting for him.

"Oh," the girl said, vaguely, "is it you? I am glad to see you," she added, as an afterthought. "Won't you come right in?"

For a moment her late instructor in the arts of stenography and typewriting appeared to debate about this invitation. Perhaps he detected its perfunctory tone. Drawing from his breast pocket a handkerchief, he mopped his pale brow energetically.

The handkerchief was large in size, pink in color, silk in texture. He replaced it carefully, so that a generous corner protruded above the top of his pocket, then advanced and shook Agnes' outstretched hand.

"If it will not be an intrusion, Miss Morley," he said with an air of gaiety. "I shall be pleased to accept."

"Certainly, come in," the girl repeated, suppressing a smile of amusement, she stood aside and motioned to him to enter.

"Let me take your hat," she suggested as he paused in the hallway and looked about him.

Randolph Pickens handed his "Panama"—that is what the clerk in the hat store assured him it was—to her in whose honor he had purchased it, and Agnes, his hat in her hand, led the way into the little parlor, where she turned up the gas, laid the Panama on the table and pushed a chair forward for her guest.

"Sit down," she urged. "It is kind of you to call so soon, Mr. Pickens."

"Oh, don't mention it," the man rejoined, seating himself. "As my pupil, Miss Morley," he continued, with the air of one reciting a carefully prepared speech, "your proficiency aroused in me the greatest interest. Now that you have at last ventured into the marts of trade, it is no less a part of my pedagogical duty to learn for myself what benefit you have derived from my instruction."

AGNES IS AMUSED

"You are very kind," Mr. Pickens," Agnes reiterated, trying again to check a smile of amusement.

"Oh, not at all," he assured her, clasping and unclasping his bony hands about one skinny knee—his light eyes blinking solemnly at the gaslight.

"You want will be glad to see you, too." The girl tried to break a silence that threatened to be awkward.

Behind the closed portieres at the back of the room someone was moving cautiously, and Agnes spoke to this unseen person:

"Aunt Lucy, won't you please come into the parlor?"

There was a certain arch tone which Miss Morley used only when Philip Hale was visiting her niece. The elderly spinster always regarded the lad as a charming suitor for Agnes' hand, and her speech when he was present proclaimed her attitude.

In the past this had embarrassed the girl intensely, but she had never been able to explain to her kind relative that she disliked it.

"Oh, Aunt Lucy," she called again, "come in, please!"

The answer came from behind the portieres where Miss Lucy lingered in the fond conviction that the unseen guest was her favorite, Philip Hale.

"No!" she replied. Her tone conveyed gentle raillery. "You two dear children have lots of things to say to each other, I am sure, and it would only bore both of you if an old woman came in now."

Mr. Pickens looked about him, startled, but when he turned his puzzled gaze to where Agnes had just been she was gone. The curtains still trembled from her swift passage between them, and from the interior back of them came the sound of whisperings.

"Please hush." Agnes was hissing in her aunt's ear. "Do you know who's in the parlor?"

"Philip Hale, of course." Miss Morley replied.

A LITTLE CORRECTION

"Well, it isn't." the girl exclaimed. "It would have been bad enough if it was. But it is Mr. Pickens, a teacher in the school, about whom you made that remark just now. He is a horrid person," she added, more to reprove her aunt than from any actual dislike of her caller.

Seated on the side of her bed, Miss Morley gazed at her niece with mild, shocked eyes.

"Oh, my goodness gracious!" she gasped, "What have I done?"

"You've got to come in and meet him now." Agnes announced sternly. "And please do tell him that you thought it was a friend of mine calling. He'll think you mean a girl friend—at least I hope he will."

Without waiting for further demur, Agnes led her aunt into the parlor.

"I was about to retire," the older woman explained nervously after Mr. Pickens had risen and acknowledged Agnes' introduction. "I did not understand that my little girl had a gentleman caller. She tells me you were one of her teachers at school."

"I am a professor of stenography and typewriting at the business college," Mr. Pickens corrected her.

"Mr. Pickens was very kind to me when I was at the school," the girl interposed. "He called this evening to see how I was getting on with my new position."

"And to say that I trust you have benefited by my instruction," Mr. Pickens amended.

"Yes, indeed," Agnes assured him, "I have."

"I am glad," he said, timidly, "if that is so. It—it's been a real pleasure to teach you. It seems quite different there now that you've gone."

A bell whirred sharply and Miss Lucy rose. "It must be the postman," she muttered.

"Does your new work tire you much?" the caller asked, sympathetically.

"Oh, not much." Agnes replied. "Of course, at first"—then she paused, as she heard a step in the hall.

A moment later Philip Hale entered the room.

PLANT JUICE WAS BLESSING TO HER

Dorchester Church Lady Says Plant Juice, the New Stomach Remedy, Has Cured Her.

Of late years medical opinion and practice have undergone many changes, one notable illustration being the importance accorded stomach troubles. Preventive medicine, a feature to which physicians paid little or no attention than formerly. This is a feature upon which the public generally should be made acquainted in a popular way to the end that valuable service may be rendered the community, not only in the present, but for posterity.

Great success has attended the introduction of Plant Juice, the new herbal stomach remedy, which acts as a preventive medicine and which is designed to meet the requirements of the stomach, liver, kidneys and intestinal disorders, for this remedy is scientific as well as efficacious, and seldom fails to benefit those suffering from the above named complaints. Scores of well-known local people are daily giving testimonials as to the benefits they have received from Plant Juice.

Only the other day Mrs. Sarah A. Lamb, who resides at No. 3 Neponset avenue, Dorchester, Mass., a well-known and popular lady of that town, who has many friends in this city, and also prominent in church circles, said:

"For 15 years I have suffered with indigestion and dyspepsia, and everything I ate would ferment in my stomach and cause gas to form there. I could not eat any solid food, as it gave me such distress, and only cereals and liquids all the time. was all bloated with gas, which pressed on my heart; had headaches, dizzy spells, was so nervous I could not sleep at night and felt weak and miserable. I had pains in my back and all over my body. All the medicines I had taken failed to give me any relief, and it was not until I began to take Plant Juice that I got any benefit. I now can eat anything I want, as it has put my stomach in perfect condition; I sleep well, have no more pains or aches and can truthfully say that Plant Juice has cured me."

The Plant Juice Man is at the Drug Department of the Houghton & Dutton Store, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy.—Advertisement.

Anecdotes of the Famous

Miss Illington, the well-known actress, tells a story of an amusing unrehearsed effect that occurred one night when she was acting in the comedy, "Mrs. Dane's Defence."

She tripped and fell full-length upon the stage. This was bad enough, but, as luck would have it, the next line in the play, which was immediately spoken by another character, was—

"Mrs. Antonine Porter seems very much upset!"

* * *

Samuel Warren, the novelist, was once addressing the Duke of Wellington in terms so flattering that the Duke was moved to protest.

"I am very glad we are alone, Mr. Warren," he observed.

"May I ask why, my lord?" replied Warren, in a manly tickled by the seeming compliment.

"Because," was the Duke's crushing reply, "anyone else might think I was fool enough to believe what you are telling me."

It is recorded that Tennyson once stayed at a little inn in Scotland. After his departure another guest, who had recognized him, asked the innkeeper:

"Do you know who you had wi' you the other night?"

"Naa, but he was a pleasant shentleman."

"It was Tennyson, the poet."

"An' who may he be?" asked the landlord.

"Oh, he is a writer o' verse aich as ye see i' the papers"

"Noo, to think o' that! Juist a puble writer, and I gied him my best bedroom!"

"When His Ship Came In"

By NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1916, by International News Service

"OH," says Youth to me, with "Treasure Island" under his one arm and "Aucassin and Nicolette" under the other. "Oh, why is it 'Ships' don't 'come in' with our fortune aboard? Dear Lady, did Romance truly die once—and are all the stories we read only memories of her? Why must I meet the girl I'm going to love, perhaps at a crowded dance, with my collar wilted wet from Castle-polkaing and my hair as though I had been in swimming, with her little nose beaded with dew and her breath coming so fast she can't hardly repeat my name!

"Maybe I'll even meet her at a table with a mob of chattering people in bare shoulders and fey gems, with men stuck in between like magpies in black and white, my eyes lifting to hers for the first wonderful time when Romance ought to be right there with all her lively things—over—over Chicken Southern Style! (Though I must say it would be colored with Romance to meet The Girl's eyes over the chicken my mother can make. And I reckon any girl would find dreams a-plenty in her Destiny's eyes when it was over frozen strawberry mousse!)" (Oh, Youth, but your Tummy lies, after all, close to your heart. Maybe it's your own fault that your ship beaded with dew and her breath coming so fast she can't hardly repeat my name!

"Perhaps—it's just as likely as not, the way things go—I'll see her first when my mouth's wide open with a yell when I'm fanning a football game. And she will say, 'I'm delighted to meet you, Mr. Um-haha.' And I'll grin—and my day will have come! Oh, lady, when my ship comes in, not my money ship—but the ship I dream of—why can't it come in in glory? Trotting the beach some stormy day, as I like to do—with the old gray sea throwing its mane and trampling the sand and boiling in like the dickens, if I saw a great yacht come ashore—or even, who cares, just a little coastwise craft —I who am a swimmer, who can ride the breakers like a playing porpoise, would fight my way out to her, where she pounded, and bring back with me out of the gray thunder and wreck a girl, seabeaten and limp—my share of the rescue. And Love, unseen and smiling through the salt-wash blinding him, would wade out beside us. 'There's Romance! I would bring my girl out of the sea—if I could have my way—my bit of wreckage that I brought ashore! And, of course, she'd love me—they do in tales. Always!

"When my ship comes in! My dream ship with the girl that grows somewhere for me. If it only won't come in and dock at a regular pier, in a regular fashion—and I there with regular flowers and a regular hat and clothes!"

So mourns Youth with "Treasure Island" under one arm and "Aucassin and Nicolette" under the other. Sighing for color and dream and adventure and the first blooming of Love under the sky of true Romance. Sighing that his "Ship Come In" in the fashion of tales. "Let me bring my girl out of the sea—instead of discovering her at a dinner table over Chicken Southern Style!"—NELL BRINKLEY.

The Manicure Lady

She Tells George About Life at the Beach

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

"We have moved to the seashore for the Summer," said the Manicure Lady. "I had a grand time on the beach yesterday. Two nights see me swim, George. A mermaid ain't got nothing on me."

"You got a lot on a mermaid instead," said the Head Barber. "I'll bet you look grand in a bathing suit."

"Well, some of the gents was kind enough to say nice things down at the beach," admitted the Manicure Lady, "but of course a girl like me, that is all the time listening to hot air in her daily work, gets kind of blase-say, as the Swedes say.

"There was one gent in the crowd that seemed to like me a lot, and I must say he interested me, too. He writes stories for the magazines, he told me. Gee, what if I should marry a author! It must be great to be the wife of a gent that everybody is talking about, instead of being a gent and having everybody talking about his wife."

"I always said you'd marry some big leaguer," said the Head Barber. "Lots of manicure girls does that. Only I hope it won't be right away. I'd miss you."

"I'd miss you, too, George," said the Manicure Lady, "but I hope for my own sake that if it ain't right off immediately it will be soon after. A life of luxury would hit me grand right now. Listen to this I was just reading out of a magazine:

"'Lady Blarington moved noiselessly about her stately drawing room. The golden sun of morning lit up her elegant surroundings and her girlish, tender face. Lazing pensively at a goldfish, she sighed happily.'

"That's the life, George. Me for that. If I had a stately drawing room and a few of them goldfish to gape at pensive, I wouldn't ask for nothing else."

"Maybe you wouldn't be happy in them high places," said the Head Barber. "I seen a moving picture the other night that showed a girl named Thelma, that came from Norway to live in a swell London circle. The ladies of her set didn't do a thing to her. They called her a peasant and treated her like one, so she beat it back home."

"I would-a-stayed," said the Manicure Lady. "I never seen the human being yet, man or woman, that could nag me into running away. And if I happen to marry a society gent, George, which won't happen unless I get hypnotized, you will see a manicure sailing along with her head as high as the next one, only I would treat my servants kind and wouldn't have no scandal about me in the newspapers."

"One of the girls that used to work here married a duke," said the Head Barber. "She fell for a fortune, then to the duke. I seen her once driving in the park, but she didn't give me a flash. She looked about as happy as Jim Corbett looked after his fight at Carson City. Don't marry no duke, kid. Marry a doctor, or a lawyer, or a merchant."

"Well, George," said the Manicure Lady, "whoever it is, it better be somebody before many more leap years."

Tabloid Tales

What is meant, Mother, by "as beautiful as a dream?"

It is an expression, My Child, which men use idly, and women, without thinking, accept as a compliment. In dreams, something big and black, with cruel teeth and eyes and claws, is chasing the dreamer. If a woman looked like that, she would be locked up.

Why, Mother Mine, do men just naturally drift into compliments when talking to women?

They don't, Little One; it is the interpretation that makes their remarks complimentary. If a man says a woman has an unusual face, she thinks he means she is beautiful. If he says her letters sound just like her, she takes that to mean that they are interesting.

New, Positive Treatment to Remove Hair or Fuzz

(Beauty Notes)

Women are fast learning the value of the use of delatone for removing hair or fuzz from face, neck or arms. A paste is made with some powdered delatone and water and spread on the hairy surface. In 2 or 3 minutes it is rubbed off, the skin washed and every bit of hair has disappeared. No failure will result if you are careful to buy genuine delatone.—Advertisement.

The Biography of a Sinner

Vera Allows Norton to Kiss Her and Myra Returns Home and Comes to See Vera

By ANN LISLE

Somehow my tenderness for Rex vanished. I felt a sudden bitter resentment with him for making his infatuation for Clara Stacey evident to everyone in Roxbrooke. Even Rex was weak. He couldn't fight for Mildred—he came to his love for her. And he didn't confide in me because I was a woman and he had grown to be very suspicious and critical where everything feminine was concerned.

I had known an impulsive second of wanting to be honest and simple, and then I had reverted to my calculating feeling that the game to be played that way and that I needn't bother to be better than my neighbors. Why, why didn't I try to understand Rex instead of judging him?

Norton kissed me that night as we drove home from the dance, and he told me that he cared more for me than any girl he'd ever known. He didn't say anything about marrying me, but the omission did not worry me. I was not quite nineteen, and Norton was only twenty-three. There was plenty of time for matrimonial discussion later.

I meant to have a little fun first and see a bit more of New York life and gayety. A sudden vision of Jim Donaldson flitted across my consciousness. I wondered why he didn't get my address from Mildred and write to me.

I wondered why he didn't try to get her to arrange to have me spend another day in New York. It didn't occur to me that I might have made no impression on the handsome, cynical man of thirty whose mouth was hard and whose eyes were tired. So easily had my success in capturing Norton gone to my head that I did not dream that bigger fish needed stronger bait.

Things went along smoothly for the next few weeks. And then Myra came home. Norton continued spending his Saturday afternoons and Sunday evenings with me. He did not tell me what he did with the rest of his time, and I did not ask him. The consciousness of a rival in the office made me very demonstrative. I gave him eagerly of the love and caresses he had so soon begun to take as a right.

I was a little afraid to withhold my lips and arms—for there was the chance that my rival might be more tender than I. At the end of a week Myra came to call. Just before she arrived Aunt Sadie called me on the telephone and told me that she wanted me to be one of the first to know of Corinne's engagement to De Witt Hazen. A flood of resentment and bitterness almost engulfed me.

VERA IS ANGRY

So Corinne had won. And she actually dared to flaunt her success with it under my stolen from me in the face of all Roxbrooke! I fairly trembled with anger. Suddenly it seemed to me that I cared more—far more—for De Witt than I had ever been able to care for Norton.

I kept my voice low and placid when I talked to Aunt Sadie, and I asked her to convey my loving messages to Corinne and to tell her that Rex and I would come over to congratulate her that evening.

I hung up the receiver with a click and fairly hurled myself upstairs and into my room. I flung myself across my bed and gave way to a passion of weeping. My last hold on idealism, the final shred of my belief in anyone's decency, seemed to go then.

I knew that Corinne had deliberately broken up my affair with De Witt and had betrayed me to my father so that she might have him for herself. Girls were like that. Well, I should have to play their game.

When I came downstairs half an hour later to answer the insistent summons of the doorbell, which Nellie had a way of ignoring, I was ill prepared to see Myra.

"Have you heard the news?" she began effusively. "They're the happiest things—Corinne and De Witt are married in June. I'm to be her maid of honor. I suppose she'll ask you to be her bridesmaid unless she decides to have it entirely a college affair and have her classmates form the wedding party."

I had never been sorry for myself before. Of course, I had never felt that anybody but Rex was giving me a square deal and I had suffered a great deal when he withdrew himself from my life and confidence—but I had never pitied myself.

Some instinct told me how keenly undramatic self-pity was. I felt that if I yielded to this weakness I should merit the pity and scorn of other people and so come to despise myself.

But one moment after Myra spoke I did pity myself. It seemed to me that no one was giving me a chance to be decent. That even if I wanted to I couldn't be anything but an intriguing, designing creature. I was forced to be on the defensive.

THE UNSPOKEN WORDS

If I had been honest I should have shrieked at Myra then: "Oh, go away and leave me alone. Can't you see how I am suffering! I've never had happiness like the rest of you girls. I've never had anything but hurt and disappointments. And now Corinne takes De Witt unfairly—and you take my rightful place as maid of honor unfairly and you expect me to be polite and to kiss and make sweet speeches."

But I was much too proud to tell the truth!

So this is what I said: "What a lovely romance—sister and pupil. Of course De Witt's a little bit of a stick, not the sort we'd like, Myra—not a real man of the world—but I'm sure he'll be a wonderful husband, and she's just the girl for him. She'll love running his house and managing on eighteen hundred dollars if he gets that much—and a little too ambitious, aren't we? I think we're the sort of girls who are inevitably gravitate toward New York."

Good Housekeeping Recipes

Good food properly cooked goes far toward insuring health and long years. As much depends on the cooking, however, as on the food itself. The following recipes have been tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Institute, conducted by GOOD HOUSEKEEPING, and are republished here by special arrangement with that publication, the Nation's Greatest Home Magazine.

All measurements are level, standard half-pint measuring cups, tablespoons, and teaspoons being used. Sixteen level tablespoonfuls equal a half-pint. Quantities are sufficient for six people unless otherwise stated. Flour is sifted once before measuring.

Mixed Vegetable and Egg Salad

One cupful shredded string beans, 1 cupful peas, 1 cupful shredded cucumber, ½ cupful sliced radishes, watercress, lettuce heart, 6 hard-boiled eggs, radish-roses and parsley.

Mix together the peas, beans, cucumber and sliced radishes and let stand in a cold place for thirty minutes to marinate in French dressing. Halve the hard-boiled eggs lengthwise, cut off the lower ends so that they will stand upright, and dip each one in a little tart lemon jelly; have the salad-plate very cold and arrange these egg-halves in a circle. They should stick at once if the jelly mixture contains enough gelatin. Fill in with the vegetable mixture, top with a lettuce-heart, and garnish with parsley and radish-roses. Pass mayonnaise dressing.

Baked Bananas with Bacon

Six bananas, quarter cupful water, six strips of bacon. Peel bananas, cut in halves lengthwise, and place in a baking-dish with the water. Bake for thirteen minutes in a hot oven. Cut the bacon in inch-strips, place it on the bananas, return it to the oven, and bake until the bacon is crisp. Garnish with parsley.

Boy Wanted

Small Boy—"Ma says they've got a new baby girl at Mr. Jones, the grocery."

Small Girl—"My! what a sell! Will they have it cut off?"

"Of course, silly. Why?"

"'Cause there's a card in the shop window with 'Boy wanted' on it."

WOMEN RUSH TO BIRTH CONTROL TRIAL

pears for the government, then introduced the paper as evidence.

Continuing with his conversation with Allison, Patrolman Long said: "He told me the paper did not give information how to control birth, but referred to it, and I told him I would not subscribe as I wanted information as to how to control.

ALLISON SUSPICIOUS.

"I told him I was a father and my wife had just had a baby and I did not want any larger family, and he said he had a pamphlet that he thought would serve my purpose. I told him that was what I wanted and was willing to pay an yamount for it. He said the pamphlet was against the law, and I told him he need not be afraid of me. He said he had one pamphlet left, but I might be a police officer. I got indignant and said if he did not have faith in me I did not want to do business with him.

"I sat down and he looked me over and said, 'I know you are a police officer because I can tell by your feet,' but I denied it and he reached in his desk and gave me the pamphlet."

Long was shown a four-leaf pamphlet with the heading, "Why and How the Poor Should Not Have Many Children," and identified it as the one received from Allison.

Long continued: "Allison said it was the last one he had, as he had given the others away, and I offered him more money for it, but he refused.

"While I was there a man came to the door and knocked, but it was locked, and Allison opened it and talked with the man and closed the door.

"I then thanked him for his kindness and told him I hoped he had more confidence in me and left the office.

"I returned again that afternoon and again found the door locked, and after a knock Allison opened it, and I told him that in order that he might have faith in me I would give him the name of a chum who would like to rece ive some literature, and then went out and met Sergeant McDonald and Sergeant Anderson.

"Sergeant McDonald knocked on the door but received no response and after saying he was a police officer and demanding admittance and the door not being opened, Sergeant Anderson broke the glass panel with an axe.

"Allison was seated at his desk and asked what the matter was and why his door should be broken and when told that they had knocked, said he must have ben taking a nap. He told us he had given me the last pamphlet he had out of fifteen or more and said he had received them through the mail, but did not know from whom they came. We then arrested him."

GIRL TESTIFIES.

Under cross-examination Long said the name he gave as that of his chum was not his own name, but that of John Long. He said he had been a junior druggist, but never filled any of the prescriptions described in the pamphlet. He admitted he had not read Dr. Robinson's article.

Sergeant McDonald accused Allison of having distributed the circulars at a North End chocolate factory, but he denied it. Long also admitted he misrepresented himself.

Sergeant McDonald followed Long on the stand and corroborated the testimony of the patrolman as to conversations in the presence of each other and Sergeant Anderson also corroborated the previous witnesses.

Long was then recalled to the stand and said Allison had told him he was "railroaded out of New Jersey either from Union or Union Depot and although I am not very old the police have been on my back for many years and driven me from place to place for distributing these pamphlets."

Philamena Flammia, a fifteen-year-old Cliftondale girl, employed in a chocolate factory at No. 116 North street said Allison gave her about twenty-five single sheet circulars headed, "Don't Have Undesirable Children."

"That was about four months ago when he was in front of the factory during the lunch hour. I gave seven or eight away and gave the rest to my foreiady. When Allison gave them to me he said, 'Give these to all the girls you know.' There was another fellow with him," said the witness.

IDENTIFIES ALLISON.

Marion Scoles of No. 269 North street, also employed in the candy factory, said she met Allison and another man at the corner of Perry and North streets, and he was distributing papers, and she identified the one shown the previous witness as one of which she received.

Attorney Roewer then objected to the time not being definitely stated, and District Attorney Pelletier said he wanted to show Allison was in the business of dealing with little girls on corners and factories.

The girl then said it was some time during the Spring.

She said she was nineteen years old.

Other witnesses were heard at the afternoon session.

Among those prominent in the courtroom were Charles Fay, lecturer in the interest of the Common Cause; Davxid Goldstein, Catholic lecturer against Socialism, and Superintendent of Police Crowley and many prominent attorneys.

TROPICAL STORM IS MOVING NORTHWARD

Washington, July 20.—The tropical storm making its way up the Atlantic coast from the West Indies apparently was centred today two hundred miles off the North Carolina coast, about eastward of Cape Hatteras.

Latest dispatches told of winds with a velocity of sixty-four miles an hour. They indicated that the storm was moving slowly northward.

Storm warnings were ordered to continue at all stations from Hatteras to Boston, except at Baltimore.

STOCKS AND INVESTMENTS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were irregular in New York at noon, having failed to rally to any extent during the morning. Industrial Alcohol was a strong issue. During the morning it advanced nearly five points. It was stated that the French government had closed with this corporation a contract for the largest amount of alcohol ever bought in this country. The market was quite active during the morning. Marine, Industrial Alcohol, Baldwin, Crucible and Studebaker were among the most largely dealt in. Railroads and motor cars ruled weak.

DECLINES AND GAINS.

Declines at 12 o'clock included Best Sugar ¾, American Can ¼, U. S. Steel ¼, Mexican Petroleum ¾, Baldwin 1¼, Studebaker 2½, Willys-Overland 1¼, Marine common 3 preferred 1¾, Crucible ¾, Kennecott ½, Canadian Pacific 2½, Southern Pacific ¼, Chesapeake & Ohio ¾, Reading ¾, New York Central ⅛ and Union Pacific ¾.

Among gains were Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies common 1¼, Baltimore & Ohio ¼, Inspiration ¼, Utah Copper ⅛, Car & Foundry ¼, American Locomotive ¼, Baldwin ¾, Crucible 1⅛ and Industrial Alcohol 2.

Strength of a number of munition issues was due to reports that more war orders are to be placed in this country in the Fall.

BOSTON WAS IRREGULAR.

Irregularity prevailed in Boston. Gulf issues continued to be the feature. Gains included among common ¾, preferred ¼; Butte & Superior ½, Osceola 1, Quincy ½ and Wolverine ½.

Among declines were Alaska Gold ¼, American Zinc ¼, Copper Range ¼, North Butte ¼, Mohawk ½ and U. S. Smelting ¼.

BOSTON CURB WAS QUIET.

Early trading on the Boston Curb was quiet and prices were irregular. More issues were down than up, however. Around the end of an hour declines included Boston & Montana, ½; Fortuna 2 cents and Homa 2 cents. Among gains were First National ½ and National Zinc ⅛. The most active issues were First National, National Zinc and Boston & Montana.

MARINE ISSUES WERE WEAK.

New York was narrow at the start, but firm. Yesterday's advance failed to create any outside demand of consequence for stocks and covering readjustments extended to the list. Increased offerings caused a slight recessional tendency. At the end of an hour the majority of issues showed small losses. Weakness of marine issues was the cause. They jumped several points because of announcement of an increase to 71 per cent. in tax on excess profits to be levied in new British budget. Uncertainty as to metal prices restricted trading in zinc and copper. But Butte & Superior was strong.

Boston began dull and firm, with most of the business in Gulf common.

FINANCIAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

The Studebaker Company is said to have received additional orders for wagons from the United States government, which will total $4,000,000.

Operating revenues of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy road for the year ended by June will exceed $150,000,000. This will be a big record by from $7,000,000 to $8,000,000. The road is said to have earned $18,000,000 more than dividend requirements.

It is hoped that Arizona Commercial directors will declare an initial dividend some time in the coming autumn, as the company's earnings are said to be at the rate of $2 a share a year on outstanding stock.

While it is rumored on Wall Street that munition orders aggregating $50,000,000 are to be placed soon in this country by the allied powers, a representative of one of the largest ordinance companies is quoted as saying no large orders of such a kind are booked for by the firm.

Profits of Sears, Roebuck & Co. are so large there are Chicago rumors that the management will cut a "melon." The corporation's surplus is estimated at $40,000,000 and earnings this year are said to have increased from 10 to 15 per cent.

JUDGE A DARLING, IDA CLAUSSEN SAYS

New York, July 20.—Mrs. Ida Claussen-Dona may be released from the restraint over her person and property exercised by her brother, M. B. Claussen, when the various technical intricacies of the law are unsnarled. She sought this emancipation before Justice Hendrick of the Supreme Court. The Justice held that a writ of habeas corpus was not the proper remedy.

"However," he said, "I am free to say that in the event of a case in which I had jurisdiction to act I would give the care of the property over to her, as conceded by all parties that Mrs. Dona is not now a fugitive from justice and at liberty, and she has a husband."

Isn't he a darling Judge? exclaimed Mrs. Dona, and everybody laughed.

AL DAVIS AND WIFE IN MOTOR ACCIDENT

New York, July 20.—Mrs. Eugenia Kelly Davis and her husband were shaken up when their new automobile was side-swiped by another machine on the Jericho turnpike. Mrs. Davis was driving the automobile, which was overturned into a ditch at the side of the road and wrecked. The second automobile contained four men. It is said to be traveling at high speed. Davis told the authorities it belonged to a friend of his name as A. H. Frost of Cedarhurst.

Motor Notes.

P. E. Hawley of the Hawley-Cowen Company left Boston for Detroit, where he has gone to attend a Saxon dealers' meeting. Mr. Hawley is well pleased with the results to the enclosed cars recently held by Saxon dealers throughout the country, and is so small credit to the organization to know that the Boston test was fully as successful as those held in any other sections of America.

George B. Snow, formerly of Boston and now sales manager of the Chalmers Motor Car Company at Detroit, has been elected president and general manager of the Chalmers Motor Company of New York city, which is to handle the retail of the Mitchell line in that territory.

• • •

E. C. Tibbitts and H. M. Bacon of the B. F. Goodrich Company, who came to Boston to attend the meeting of the Rubber Club of America, enjoyed the double-header in this city yesterday as the guests of Fred T. Moore, the local Goodrich man.

• • •

J. W. Maguire returned yesterday from a flying trip to the Pierce factory, where he was successful in securing a fair assortment of quite a number of Pierce cars.

• • •

C. S. Henshaw, distributor of the Dodge Brothers' cars, is spending a few days in Detroit visiting the Dodge plant of the Dodge Brothers in that city. Mr. Henshaw is one of the largest and most successful Dodge agents throughout the country, and is through his efforts that that line is considered as the banner district in the Dodge Brothers' organization.

ROCKEFELLER'S WEALTH OVER A BILLION

Cleveland, O., July 20.—Information of the existence of a balance sheet compiled ten days ago on the occasion of John D. Rockefeller's seventy-seventh birthday, showing that his private fortune, exclusive of endowment funds and other benefactions, exceeds a billion dollars, is said to be in possession of the authorities of Cuyahoga County.

The existence of the balance sheet, indicating that Mr. Rockefeller's fortune has jumped several points because of announcement of an increase to 71 per cent. in tax on excess profits to be levied in new British budget. Uncertainty as to metal prices restricted trading in zinc and copper. But Butte & Superior was strong.

Uncertainty as to metal prices restricted trading in zinc and copper. But Butte & Superior was strong.

Boston began dull and firm, with most of the business in Gulf common.

International Absorbs the Sun News Service

By International News Service.

New York, July 20.—The International News Service has absorbed the New York Sun service known as the Laffan News Bureau. This means that all the newspapers heretofore served by that organization, which was the original United Press, will henceforth be dependent for their news upon the International News Service.

It means there are now in the United States but two complete up-to-date news services of twenty-four hours each—the International News Service and the Associated Press. All other organizations give merely partisans services and in their way, but neither competes nor undertakes their covering of the events of the world.

There is nothing in the history of the press associations to equal the phenomenal growth of the International News Service. In the first six weeks after the outbreak of the European war in 1914 the International News Service put on fifty-six new news clients. During 1915 the total net gain of news clients was 115. For the first six months of this year the total net gain of 107 new news clients was added to the roll.

REVISE RULES FOR CARRYING STOCK

Washington, July 20.—Restrictions placed upon the shipment of pedigreed horses, cattle and swine by the railroads were today removed by a decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission. New rates and regulations governing such shipments were also revised. Practically every railroad in the country is affected by the decision.

The President and Congress Merit Applause for Enacting the Rural Credits Bill

THE signature by the President of the rural credits bill marks the successful culmination of a long fight, led by the AMERICAN and other Hearst newspapers, for the emancipation of the farmers from unjust and burdensome conditions imposed upon them by the banking interests and the banking laws of the nation.

The President very fairly and justly summed up the conditions from which the farmers are relieved by this legislation when he said:

"The farmers, it seems to me, have occupied hitherto a singular position of disadvantage. They have not had the same freedom to get credit on their real estate that others have had who were in manufacturing and commercial enterprises, and while they have sustained our life they did not in the same degree with others share in the benefits of that life.

"Therefore this bill, along with the very liberal provisions of the Federal Reserve Act, puts them upon an equality with all others who have genuine assets and makes the great credit of the country available to them. One cannot but feel that this is delayed justice to them, and cannot but feel that it is a very gratifying thing to play any part in doing this act of justice."

To Senator Fletcher of Florida is due the greater part of the credit for steering this legislation successfully through Congress. The Senator was a pioneer in the movement. Representing as he does an agricultural State, he keenly felt the injustice which the existing banking laws allowed to fall upon that most important class which farms the land and produces the fundamentals upon which all other classes of the community depend.

After a vigorous agitation of the evil, the Southern Commercial Congress, under the leadership of Senator Fletcher, appointed a commission to study European methods of financing the farming interest. The Congress of the United States took like action, and the commissions, both appointed by President Wilson, toured European countries in 1913, making a very careful investigation into the rural land credit banks which form so great a part of the financial system of continental countries.

The immediate result was the Fletcher-Moss bill, which, after various changes, both in title and in substance, by later Congresses, furnishes the essential features of the present law.

Senator Fletcher may, therefore, rightfully claim the honor of being the author of this great step forward and this progressive provision for relieving farmers from a situation which was really one of extortion practiced under the countenance of the law.

It was vital to the country that some legislation of this sort should be provided. During the long and heated discussion, not merely in Congress, but in the press, which has attended the slow progress of this bill to enactment, the American people have been made familiar with the grave injustice done to the farming community by the existing systems of extending credit.

It is not too much to say that no manufacturer or merchant could possibly do business successfully today if the obstacles in the way of securing credit and the interest exacted of him for loans made were as great as in the case of the farmer.

It is not fair to charge that this condition of affairs was due wholly to the greed of the banks. Partly it proceeded from the lack of knowledge among bankers of proper methods of securing farm loans so that they would not be extra hazardous and for the protection of the banker bring in extraordinarily large interest.

The fact that there was no provision in the federal law for rediscounting notes based upon securities which farmers had to offer was, of course, the fundamental flaw in the haphazard system under which we have been working.

All this is corrected in the Fletcher bill. The system of twelve loan banks, under control of a federal board to be appointed by the President, puts the business of farm loans on a plane with that of commercial loans. The farmer is assured of the same facilities of obtaining credit on his successful farm as the manufacturer is upon his profitable mill. This is only justice, though belated justice.

In his remarks on the occasion of signing the measure, the President wisely said: "I look forward to the benefit of this bill not with extravagant expectations, but with confident expectations that it will be of very wide-reaching benefit."

It is prudent not to expect that all the evils to which the farming community has been so long subjected will be immediately cured by this legislation. Indeed, the law is not all that the more ardent advocates of farmers' credit desire. It does not go as far as similar measures in operation in Germany and France today have gone with complete success. Nevertheless it is a great step in advance, and the Democratic party and the President deserve unstinted commendation for its passage.

The farmers of New England and those citizens of New England—and they are all the citizens of New England—who benefit by the prosperity of the farmers will have reason to appreciate the great service of Senator Henry F. Hollis of New Hampshire, who led the fight for the rural credits bill on the floor of the Senate and who gave his days and nights for months in study for the advocacy of this bill.

Mother Often to Blame For Children's Neglect

Aged Women Generally Responsible When Sons and Daughters Fail to Welcome Them in Homes—Many Cause Trouble by Nagging and Constant Criticism

By Dorothy Dix

I GET a great many pathetic letters from old women complaining bitterly that their children neglect them, and that they are unwelcome inmates in their sons' or daughters' homes.

Certainly nothing could be more tragical than the fate of the mother who sees the children that she has borne in agony, for whom she has toiled and sacrificed and slaved, turn from her without even an impulse of gratitude, and fail her when she needs their love and cherishing in her helpless age even as they needed her love and cherishing in their helpless infancy.

Nor is there any spectacle so revoltingly hideous as that of prosperous men and women who repay a mother's devotion with thanklessness, who begrudge a few dollars to her who has given her heart's blood to them, who ruthlessly kick down the patient, bent shoulders on which they have climbed to a higher social position, and who have no room in their full lives for the one who bestowed life upon them.

The old mother whom nobody wants is a very common figure, and one whom we may all pity, yet she has brought her troubles upon herself, and her case is worth considering by every other mother lest the same thing befall her.

Woman Herself Responsible for Treatment Her Children Give Her

In the first place every woman's children treat her just as she teaches them to treat her. This sounds like a cruel and brutal thing to say, but it is true. Every mother in the world writes her own price tag, and her children take her at her own valuation.

If a woman makes a doormat of herself her children will use her as a doormat and walk over her without one thought of compunction. They will think that that is what she is there for. But if she makes of herself a fine and precious vessel they will admire and revere her as they would any other valuable possession, and handle her delicately and tenderly.

The mother who permits her three-year-old baby boy to speak to her impudently is deliberately raising up a son who will swear at her when he is grown. The mother who slaves and drudges around the house while her children loll about in idleness is going to have to take in boarders to support them when they grow up into loafers.

The mother who goes ragged and shabby that her children may have silly finery, who never exacts any service from them, who lets them deride her opinion, is bringing up cross and daughters who will despise her and have contempt for her and neglect her when they start forth on their own careers.

She is bringing the curse down on her own head and she deserves what she gets, because she had her children when their minds and characters were plastic, and she might have instilled into them respect for her and chivalry toward her and a sense of their duty to the mother who bore them.

There are other mothers who are shrined like saints in the hearts of their children, mothers to whom their children can never show enough tenderness and affection. It's all a matter of teaching, of adopting the right attitude toward one's children. It lies with every woman, when her children are babies, to decide how they shall treat her when they are grown up.

It is the mother's own fault if her children neglect her. It is also the mother's own fault, to a large degree, if she is an unwelcome instead of a cherished guest in her children's households.

There is many an old woman who is a good woman, and a mother who has made heroic sacrifices for her children, but who is so disagreeable to live with that it would take more than mortal patience to stand her.

There is the meddling old woman, for instance, who can never go into any household without disarranging its whole machinery and trying to run it her way.

Too Often Peace Packs Up and Leaves When Mother Comes

If she goes to her son's house she criticises the way daughter-in-law uses her best china every day, the way the children are being brought up, the size of the bills, the number of card parties daughter-in-law goes to, the price of her dresses.

If she goes to her daughter's house she nags her son-in-law to death because he drinks beer, and smokes, and belongs to a club, and plays golf on Sunday. In any house she enters peace packs up its dress suit case and flees for parts unknown.

And there is the querulous and complaining old lady who is a living edition of the Lamentations of Jeremiah, who is always weeping and mourning and complaining all over the place, and is so sensitive and has her feelings spread around her so far that you have to walk on eggs to keep from hurting her.

When Aged Woman Is Unwelcome Guest It Is Generally Her Own Fault

And there's the argumentative old woman who can never let any subject pass without disagreeing with everybody on earth, and the tyrannical old woman who wants to force everybody to do her way and think her thoughts, and the narrow and provincial old lady who is certain that the way she did in some obscure village fifty years ago is the way life ought to be run in the city today. And there are also fifty other varieties of disagreeable and cantankerous old ladies who are home wreckers.

Generally speaking, whenever an old woman is not a welcome guest under any roof it is her own fault, for all of us know plenty of sweet, wise, gentle, forbearing, broad-minded old ladies whose children worship them, whose in-laws adore them, and whom we all welcome with open arms.

The moral of all of which is that we are mighty apt to get what is coming to us, and that it behooves every woman in her youth to begin to make herself the sort of a woman that everybody will want around them when she is old.

In-Shoots

In the mirror we see ourselves as others ought to see us.

It is difficult to improve on nature, even in the form of a natural-born fool.

Some fellows can handle a toothpick in a way to give dignity to a ten-cent lunch.

The man who says that he works for principle probably means the principal that draws interest.

The good fellow always seems to be a better fellow away from home than when about the house.

The Boy Comic

By William F. Kirk

A LOVELY boy to have around
Was Clarence Edward Traynor;
The girls all said they'd never found
A lovelier entertainer.
For he could do a lot of tricks,
And sing a lot of ballads—
He knew such things as palming rings
And recipes for salads.

He knew the Charlie Chaplin walk,
Could cook a ripping chowder,
Could dance like Cohan, ape his talk,
And sing like Harry Lauder.
He made a fine ventriloquist
When he saw fit to do so;
Could give a ball the Rudolph twist
And warble like Caruso.

With all his range it seemed so strange
No vaudeville man would hire him
He'd work a week, receive his change,
And then the boss would fire him.
We hate to rap this luckless chap,
With all his parlor magic,
For sleight-of-hand may slight the brain,
And slight of brain is tragic.

The Balanced Universe

By Edgar Lucien Larkin

Director Mount Lowe Observatory

Q. "Supposing a planet should be discovered just half way between our sun and the next neighboring sun; under the jurisdiction of which sun would the planet be?"

E. S. WHITE, JR.

A. If there were only two suns in existence, absolutely equal in mass, that is, quantity of matter, and the centre of gravity of the planet in absolute half way between centres of gravity of the two suns, then the planet would be without weight, exactly balanced in space, and would not commence to fall toward either. But this exact balancing cannot be in nature; we know of one hundred million suns scattered over the celestial vault, revealed by actual photographs. And by means of the calculus of probabilities, an integration in between the limits of sparsely and densely settled regions of the Milky Way, that congeries of suns must contain not less than a billion suns. Then by Newton's first law: "All matter attracts all matter outside of itself with an intensity directly as to mass and inversely as to the squares of distance," all matter in the entire universe would attract our lone planet. It would be attracted in many millions of directions. Many of these opposed attractions would neutralize. But the world would move in the direction of unbalanced attraction.

But the suns are all in rapid motion in every conceivable and unconceivable direction. Then the resulting motions are crudely comparable to the motions of bees in a swarm. None can rest for even an instant of time. Thus: If the sun and earth were the only two bodies in existence, the earth would lose all its weight once in April and once in October each year, being then during a fraction of a second, at exact mean distance. But all weight is never wiped out, owing to attractions of near planets, and enormously remote millions of suns.
